Japanese first secretary, said the attorney general hadn't seen the protests. Gen. "They haven't been translated yet so we don't know exactly what they say," Osborn said.

Demonstration Planned

Although Japan's leftists have announced no plans for demonstrations against Kennedy's visit, reports circulated that leftist students were planning a demonstration Thursday at Waseda University, where Kennedy is scheduled to meet student groups. One official of the Kennedy welcoming committee said a special police escort had not been arranged.

Kennedy met Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda today and assured him that future U.S. economic policy under his brother's direction will not neglect Japan.

Economic issues that have caused some grumbling in Japan came up in the first official call of the U. S. attorney general's six-day visit to Japan.

David Osborn, U.S. Embassy first secretary, said the proposed 8½-cent a pound surcharge on the cotton content of textiles the United States imports was stressed in Kennedy's talk with Ikeda.

Lower Tariffs

Kennedy assured Ikeda that the trend in U.S. policy is definitely toward lowering tariffs, Osborn said.

Kennedy also told Ikeda that President Kennedy's intention to

'Red Carpet' Fete Given To Adoula Congolese Premier In Washington as Guest of Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congolese Premier Cyrille Adoula arrived in Washington today and was given a red carpet reception as an honored guest of President Kennedy.

It is the first visit to this country for Adoula, who is the U. S. government's favorite for leadership of a united Congo.

Kennedy arranged a White House luncheon in Adoula's honor and an overnight stay at Blair House, the President's guest house.

Undersecretary of State George W. Ball headed an airport welcoming delegation which greeted the Congo leader as he arrived from New York aboard a U. S. Air Force plane.

19-Gun Salute

After a 19-gun salute, play of heraldic trumpets and other flourishes, Ball said in a welcoming address that the United States has "watched with great respect — with admiration in fact — your efforts to bring peace and stability to the Congo."

"We regard the development of an independent and peaceful Congo of greatest importance to the whole free world," Ball said. He

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—The path of the eclipse lay over the South Pacific, and New Guinea was plunged into darkness. "It was so dark I could not see the numbers of my camera," said Jim Huxley, editor of the New Guinea Times.

Dogs, Roosters Nervous

Dogs barked, roosters crowed and native papuans on the island hid in their huts until the sun shone again.

Teams of foreign scientists gathered at Lee, on the east coast of New Guinea, and a Japanese team reported complete success in observing the eclipse.

Indian airlines operated one flight to Bombay without a single passenger. Other planes in the area flew almost empty.

Katmandu, capital of Nepal, looked like a ghost town except around the Hindu temples. All shops were closed and streets deserted. Fearful of earthquakes that would bring their homes tumbling down on them, thousands of Nepalese took shelter in steep mountain praying.

Concentrate on Science, U. S. Spaceman Asks

Declares Newsmen Put Too Much Stress On Personal Aspects

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lt. Col. John H. Glenn, Jr. told President Kennedy today he wished newsmen would concentrate on scientific aspects of his projected flight into space rather than his personal life.

Glenn, whose attempts to orbit the globe in a space capsule have been postponed until Feb. 13 at the earliest, visited Kennedy at the White House and had, he told reporters afterward, "a very pleasant morning." He was accompanied by Lt. Col. John Powers, Project Mercury information officer.

'Walter Mitty'

Glenn told the President newsmen in effect were bringing out the "Walter Mitty" in the public—a hidden desire to live the spectacular experience of an astronaut. Mitty was a fictional character who fancied himself in assorted roles. Mitty was created by the late James Thurber.

Kennedy sympathized a bit with Glenn, saying he was aware of the problem but noting also that it put a human stamp on Project Mercury.

Glenn was almost swarmed under by reporters and photographers at his home in nearby Arlington, Va., last Saturday.

In his conversation with Kennedy, the astronaut said he didn't mind the attention at all but the emphasis was on the wrong points.

Glenn said he and Powers, had discussed their concern about diverting that attention to the science behind the program to orbit a man in space.

"We don't know how to get them to concentrate on the scientific aspects," Glenn said. Newsmen, he added, appear to be more in

American Missionaries Evacuated From Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Thirteen American missionaries women and children have been evacuated from the Presbyterian mission at Bibanga in south Kasai, scene of new military tensions caused by insubordinate Congolese troops, consular officials announced today.

The missionaries were flown out last week after a U.N. rescue plane was seized and its crew held for three hours by Baluba tribal gendarmes loyal to their native chief, Albert Kalonji, now under arrest by the Leopoldville central government.

Husbands of three of the women remained at the mission.

Oshkosh Market Robbed By Trio; Two Are Armed

Between $1,500-$2,000 Taken As Bandits Make Getaway

OSHKOSH — Three men, two of whom were armed, at gunpoint held up the Red Owl supermarket at 708 W. Murdock St., on the north city limits of Oshkosh, and escaped with between $1,500 and $2,000 in cash shortly after 8:30 a.m. today.

The trio had not been apprehended up to noon today but a statewide alert has been sent out, describing the men and the dark car with out-of-state license plates they were seen driving.

Capt. William Gonyo of the Oshkosh Police Department said the robbery occurred in this fashion:

Three men entered the store about 8:15 a.m., took a grocery cart and started placing various grocery items in it. One of the men stopped the store manager, Harold Stark, as he emerged from his office to take a cash register drawer to one of the checkout counters.

The man asked Stark about the price of some glassware and then showed him a gun and said "this is a holdup."

A second man then came over to Stark, told him to act normal and go about his business, while the first man went into the office. The second man kept a watch on Stark.

When the first man came out of the office with a grocery bag into which the money, still in one economic segment of the count bank bags, had been placed, the groceries which had been placed

WASHINGTON (AP)—George W. Romney says if he decides to seek the governorship of Michigan, "I will announce as a Republican who recognizes that the Republican image needs improvement."

Romney, 56, president of American Motors, said Sunday on a television interview program — NBC — "Meet the Press"—that he will make his decision this week.

On the GOP image, Romney said: "I think the Republican party has been too much identified as a business party, as a party influenced importantly by one economic segment of the country. I think this is unfortunate and wrong."

JFK Postpones Space Message

Communications Satellite Policy Talk Gets Delay

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy postponed his message to congress today on the government's communications satellite policy. He rescheduled it for Wednesday.

The White House gave no explanation for the delay.

In the message Kennedy is expected to ask for the collaboration of several firms in developing a worldwide communications system.

The President was prepared to register his opposition to domination of the proposed system by any one company, informed sources said.

Government Position

Kennedy's special message on communications satellites was expected to clarify the government's position on ownership and participation in the proposed system.

In his State of the Union message Kennedy said he would "soon send to the Congress a measure to govern the financing and operation of an international communications satellite system in a map

7 Secret Army Members Arrested; Nation Awaits Critical De Gaulle Talk

Bulletin

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle said tonight that despite "subversive and criminal" resistance by right-wing opponents, France is moving rapidly toward peace in Algeria.

PARIS (AP) — Security officers announced today the arrest of seven Secret Army members caught with plans to overthrow the government. The development came as the nation awaited President de Gaulle's speech tonight on Algeria, which may touch off more violence.

Authorities said the arrest of the men, identified as members of the Secret Army's operational headquarters, was the most severe blow to date against the terrorist underground in France. The Secret Army is sworn to prevent Algerian independence.

At the same time, a bomb believed laid by the Secret Army damaged a TV tower in the northern city of Lille. This is a tactic used by the Secret Army to black out important speeches by de Gaulle. Transmission at Lille was not interrupted, however.

A rightist bomb also blew in the doors and smashed windows at the regional administrative headquarters at Grenoble, in the Alps, and there were scattered outbreaks of violence in Algeria.

Security Measures

The blows of the Secret Army came despite elaborate security measures in both France and Algeria against violent reaction to de Gaulle's radio and TV speech. He is expected to make some report on progress toward ending the seven-year rebellion in Algeria.

French authorities said the seven members of the Secret Army were five officers and two lawyers. Among them was a retired colonel. None is well known. They were arrested while meeting in an apartment building on the

McDonald Prepares for Contract Talks

Steelworkers' Officials Gather to Plan Strategy

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Getting off to one of the earliest starts ever, top officials of the United Steelworkers Union begin conferees today to formulate demands and strategy for contract talks with Big Steel.

The USW's executive board, headed by President David J. McDonald, will work behind closed doors today and Tuesday. The wage policy committee will convene for a one-day closed session on Wednesday.

Statements by officials at the close of the conferences may provide some hint to what the union will demand—and how tough it intends to get to back its demands.

Prior to the 1959 negotiations, the wage committee said the union would seek "substantial" improvements in wages and fringe benefits. A record 116-day strike followed.

The contract for some 425,000 basic steelworkers expires June 30.

President Kennedy put the heat on both the union and companies for an early start with the aim of getting an early settlement. The President doesn't want a strike, and he doesn't want buyers to stockpile steel in fear of a strike.

There is talk in steel circles that negotiations may get under way soon after the union conference ends, perhaps on an informal basis. March 1 has been mentioned as a possible target date for agreement on a contract.

Goldberg Prediction

Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg predicted on a recorded television program in Washington Sunday it appears a better than a 50-50 chance a contract will be signed without a strike.

Goldberg said he expects the union to go after stronger job security protection rather than pay boosts.

McDonald has been a long-time advocate of a shorter work-week as a means to spread the work and cut unemployment.

The President and Goldberg already have indicated they do not favor a reduction in the work week.

"It is not in the national interest to reduce the work week," Goldberg said.

Investigation Hits Wall Street Figure

Federal Grand Jury May Get Evidence This Week as Case Involves Prominent Financier

WASHINGTON (AP)—A prominent Wall Street figure closely associated with the New York Stock Exchange is expected to be the first target of a federal drive against alleged tax evaders in the securities field.

Informed sources said Sunday the case involves allegations of criminal tax fraud and would produce a sensation in financial and business circles.

If the government adheres to its tentative timetable, it was learned, evidence will be presented to a federal grand jury in New York City later this week. A final decision was being delayed pending a special meeting of federal prosecutors later today.

Fraud Cases

Informants said at least a dozen tax fraud cases, including this one, were being developed against brokers, underwriters, stock manipulators, "boiler room operators" and Wall Street lawyers.

They said the intensive work in the securities area was similar to past income tax crackdowns which have involved physicians, headwaiters, morticians, lawyers, small businessmen and even tugboat captains.

Some of the investigations have been under way for as long as three years. A large proportion involved Wall Street operators, but several center in other cities. A number of the pending cases resulted from recent investigations of the American Stock Exchange and its members by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Sensational Case

Some sources said that if the case of the New York Stock Exchange figure reaches the courts, it might well be the most sensational one to involve a Wall Street operator since Richard Whitney, the former president of the "Big Board," was sent to Sing Sing for grand larceny in 1933.

It was understood that the Justice Department and the Internal Revenue Service have developed allegations that the individual involved understated his income and inflated claimed deductions for contributions to charities and philanthropies.

The original evidence in many of the pending cases was uncovered by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The widely varied inquiries involve allegations that two Wall Street lawyers failed to file tax returns, that a broker did not report his full business income.

Senate Faces Two Measures This Week

College Education Aid, Regulation of Funds on Agenda

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two of President Kennedy's important legislative proposals—the college education aid measure and an employee pension-welfare fund regulation bill—come up for Senate action this week.

Senate leaders hope to put both of them through before an informal Lincoln's Birthday recess begins on Thursday. This will continue into the middle of next week to allow Republican orators to make speeches over the country.

The House also plans to pass an identical pension-welfare bill this week.

There is likely to be a wide difference between the House and Senate college measures, however. The final version will have to be worked out in conference.

The House last Tuesday passed a $1.5-billion measure, limited to funds for construction of classrooms, laboratories and libraries.

Pass Aid Bill

The Senate started debate Friday on a much broader $2,674,000,000 bill, with voting scheduled to start today. Amendments are likely to delay a final vote until Tuesday.

The bill contains not only $1.5 billion in construction loan funds, but also $924 million for students' scholarships and $250 million for grants to help build public community junior colleges.

The pension-welfare bill seeks to put teeth into enforcement of the 1958 law aimed at prevention of abuses in administration of plans which now contain almost $40 billion of assets.

Sends Message

President Kennedy sends Congress today a message on communications satellites. Tuesday he is scheduled to send to Capitol Hill a message on education. He is expected to follow later in the week with one on defense and civil defense.

Informed sources said the education message will detail programs Kennedy already has mentioned in his State of the Union and budget messages. He is not expected to unveil any new proposals. He reportedly will stress the importance of education to the nation's survival.

Adenauer's Friends Cause Him Trouble

Demands Grow for Chancellor to Put Breaks on Junior Partners

Chicago Daily News Service

BONN — There is a growing demand in West Germany today that Chancellor Konrad Adenauer put the brakes on his junior partners in the government coalition.

Like the mice who played when the cat was away, the leaders of the small Free Democratic Party have been having a romp with Soviet-German relationships during Adenauer's two week illness.

Erich Mende, the Free Democrat's leader, has demanded that West Germany intervene directly in the delicate negotiations that American Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson has been conducting in Moscow with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Dovecot Twitter

Now Bonn's political doves are twittering with the word that the Soviet ambassador here, Andrei Smirnov, is about to invite Mende and some others of his followers for a heart to heart talk in the Soviet embassy.

So far Mende has earned himself a good many newspaper headlines but not much public support. Many of Adenauer's Christian Democrats are annoyed openly at the strain Mende is creating within the coalition.

The opposition Social Democrats incline, in addition, to support Adenauer's view. The Chancellor is portrayed as feeling that the time is not ripe for a West German initiative about which he has little optimism in any case.

Big Majority

Between them the Christian Democrats and the Social Democrats represent about 85 per cent of West Germany's voters.

The conservative Frankfurter Allgemeine suggests today that a Smirnov's charm campaign is intended to create the impression that Adenauer's reserve is not backed by important elements in West Germany.

It would be "deplorable," it says, if a political party allowed itself to be caught in this trap. If there are differences of view between the coalition partners, it says, these should be threshed out either in the cabinet, in which the Free Democrats have five seats, or in the Parliamentary Commission the two partners established during their coalition negotiations last autumn.

Not in Cabinet

Mende is chairman of the Free Democratic Party but holds no cabinet ministry. Adenauer presumably will have a good deal to say to Mende when they meet privately today or tomorrow.

Die Welt, of Hamburg, says some clarification of Mende's role is essential if confidence both at

Man Dies After Entering Fire to Search for Son

WATERTOWN (AP)—A 39-year-old man died early today in the flames of his combination tavern and home when he reentered the building to search for his son who was sleeping at a neighbor's house two doors away.

The body of Donald Zoellick, who operated the tavern at Richmond six miles northwest of here, was found in the ruins of the structure.

Authorities said Zoellick had arrived home early today and the fire broke out about 4 a.m., apparently in the kitchen on the first floor of the two-story frame structure. Zoellick, his wife, Geraldine, 37, and his daughter, Joy, 12, fled. Zoellick, who did not know that his son, Donald Jr., 14, was staying at the neighbor's, went back into the building and was trapped by the flames.

Cause of the fire and an estimate of the damage were not immediately available.

Actor Has Son

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Mrs. Horst Buchholz presented her German actor-husband with a 6-pound, 10-ounce boy Sunday at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. The child, named Christopher, is the couple's first. Buchholz arrived from England Saturday night.

Home and abroad is not to be sacrificed.

From Berlin it is reported that Soviet bloc diplomats there give the impression that Moscow's current wooing of West Germany is not intended seriously but is designed instead to build some fires under the Western Allies. With increasing violence, the Soviets accuse the West of marking time and needlessly delaying the Moscow talks.

Upset Calculations

Kennedy on Offensive By Challenging Foes

Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON — The Kennedy administration has upset advance calculations about its political strategy in this mid-term election year.

Contrary to most predictions, it has moved to the offensive with surprising speed, challenging congressional foes on issues that were peripheral or non-existent when the legislators resumed their 87th session last month. The President, who was supposed to play a cautious hand, avoiding risks, has instead generated political actions that carry hazards for his minimum program.

He has opened an investigation into the nation's strategic stockpiling program that may cause pain to some of his most ardent supporters in Congress, men who represent mining interests, for example.

His own votes as a senator in behalf of expanded stockpiling indicate how deeply involved much of the Congress has been in the extravagant hoarding of minerals and foodstuffs against a war emergency.

No Disturbing?

When the session began, it was freely predicted that the President would do nothing to disturb the southern wing of his party, except to massage its collective ego. He was counting on the Dixie Democrats to reciprocate with support of his two key programs—new trade-and-tariff authority and a health insurance program for the elderly under social security.

But the moment the House Rules Committee blocked his proposal for an Urban Affairs Department, he gave the back of his hand to the southerners by asserting his authority to create the department under his reorganization authority and announcing that Robert Weaver, a Negro, would be appointed as its cabinet head.

The President, of course, blamed the Republicans on the Rules Committee for rejecting the proposal. They gave him an opening by voting en bloc against it.

Hit With Figures

But GOP leadership struck back with the statistics on civil rights voting in recent years. Somehow this seemed to escape notice at the White House, but the battle lines were clearly drawn—the urban ben affairs issue will be fought at the civil rights barricades.

Even on an issue that promised a good deal of debate but was wrapped in an irresistible peace package—the purchase of $100,000,000 worth of United Nations bonds—the President stung the opposition with the claim that "failure to act . . . would serve the interests of the Soviet Union."

To Sen. George Aiken (R-Vt.), a U.N. supporter, this smacked of unwarranted "dictation." And Aiken has begun to demand answers to embarrassing questions, notably "what kind of financing is it . . . to buy $100,000,000 worth of bonds to help the U.N. pay back $32,000,000 owed the U.S. Air Force for its Congo airlift?"

The President hasn't created all of the furor, of course. In a congressional election year, everything was destined to be weighed by the legislators in terms of votes back home.

But the expectation was that all of the politics would be played on Capitol Hill. Down at the other end of Pennsylvania Ave., the President was supposed to be on a kick loosely described as harmony at all costs, willing to trade a little here and there to preserve his basic aims.

He may pull back if too many old prejudices and predilections get involved, but at the moment he's mixing it up in a brisk style reminiscent of his 1960 campaign form.

Birch Society Head Attracts Overflow Milwaukee Crowd

Absence of GOP Party Regulars May Indicate 'Boycott' of Welch

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — The resurgence of conservatism which has aroused so much discussion in American politics in the last few years may have been shown by the rousing success here during the weekend of a right-wing rally featuring the founder of the John Birch Society as the star attraction.

Any Wisconsin political faction, right, left or middle, would have been pleased to attract an overflow audience in a huge hotel banquet room on a Saturday night of multiple diversions. Wisconsin GOP Clubs, Inc., a dissident women's political club, achieved that triumph with the aid of Robert Welch, the controversial, free-wheeling president of the best known and apparently biggest of the rightist political clubs that have sprung up around the country in the last decade. The Birch Society has a substantial number of Wisconsin chapters according to the impressions of Wisconsin politicians but its internal records are not available to the public.

800 At Dinner

How many of the banquet crowd of 800 persons of all ages — from young men bringing dates to elderly ladies — were attracted out of curiosity is a matter of surmise. Welch has become one of the most celebrated — notorious in some views — of the principal exponents of militant conservatism in the country. But observers noted also that the audience was respectful at tentative and apparently intent upon his main theme in a speech that lasted nearly an hour and a quarter — that there is a deep and timeless Communist conspiracy abroad in the land and that the constitutional framework of the nation stands in dire danger of subversion.

Welch's purpose is broader, according to his message here, than the militant anti-Communist crusade with which his movement is popularly associated.

Denounces Liberalism

He denounces anything that smacks of 'liberalism', a factor that has caused most of the practicing Republican candidates and vote-seekers to handle him with extreme caution.

Wisconsin GOP clubs, Inc., is a rebel faction within the Republican party organization of metropolitan Milwaukee county, and therefore it probably could not have expected the patronage of Republican 'regulars' including the top GOP candidates already announced for office. But the almost total absence of all regular Republican politicians suggested some kind of boycott.

Birch Idea a Worry

The seeming desire of the Republican party organization and its representative candidates to avoid any association with Welch and the Birch Society is corroborated elsewhere in state politics. Many of the local leaders of the party as the 1962 Wisconsin campaign is getting underway are worried that the Birch idea may hamper them in their appeals to moderates and independents and give the liberal Democrats an unnecessary campaign weapon.

Although Welch has become in effect a professional lecturer—he will appear as an invited guest at a political symposium at River Falls state college Thursday—he is strikingly sensitive about the methods that are accepted as a matter of course by other important political orators. He refuses absolutely to permit a photographer in his audience during his meetings. When this reporter in Milwaukee Saturday night attempted to move from the labeled press table in a far corner of the hall for a better listening point he was balked by a city policeman.

Policeman on Duty

"Maybe Mr. Welch is nervous," suggested the burly officer with a smile.

There was no explanation about the unusual fact of a police officer on duty at a dinner meeting. Welch spoke at a Lincoln Day dinner of the rebel women's GOP group which has held its own independent Lincoln rally each year in defiance of the wishes of the regular county party organization. The latter will hold its Lincoln Day dinner Saturday night here and predictions are common that it will attract less than the estimated 800 who turned out to hear Welch's keynote that political "democracy" is an American and pro-communist.

42 Killed in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — At least 42 persons were victims of accidental deaths in Ohio over the weekend. Traffic accidents accounted for 30 of the total one of the highest ever recorded in the state for a non-holiday, 54-hour weekend.

Sprain May Not Heal As Rapidly as Break

BY JOSEPH G. MÖLNER, M.D. and minimize the swelling at

"Dear Dr. Molner. What about first sprains? Some people say to soak it in hot water, others advise ice water — Mrs. B. B."

Some people have said optimistically after an injury. It isn't a break, it's just a sprain. And others, having had experience with a bad sprain have said 'A sprain is worse than a break'.

The word sprain comes from the root meaning "to press out." It is a wrenching and twisting of a joint. The bone doesn't break but ligaments or cartilage can be torn. Ligaments can be pulled loose from the bones to which they are attached, the joint capsule consisting of fibrous tissue can be stretched.

Such an injury may not heal as rapidly as a broken bone. Besides there invariably is some inner bleeding at the injured place and hence swelling and pain.

The degree of sprain makes a difference, of course. It also makes a difference whether the joint is one which is under pressure. A sprained ankle which has to hold up the weight of the body may thus be more serious than a sprained wrist which doesn't have to bear such weight.

Should Have X-Ray

From a surface examination it is often hard to tell whether a case is a fracture or a sprain but it's important to know and if there is the slightest doubt an X-ray will show the answer. In fact I'd say that if there is any swelling tenderness or black and blue mark under the skin, it's wise to X-ray.

Treatment of a sprain is more than just heat or cold. With an ankle a light cast may be needed to carry the weight while letting the sprain heal. Dr. M. H. Leonard, an orthopedist, says comparative trials show that use of such a cast results in much quicker healing, as well as less disability (stiffness or weakness) afterward.

In mild sprains, simple taping and immobilization — not putting any strain or weight on the joint — may be enough. Sometimes injection of an anesthetic drug is necessary to subdue pain.

Basically, the joint must have rest and time to heal — a lot of time. If it's an ankle — keep off it! It may take four to six weeks to recover.

Elevate a sprained ankle. As for cold or heat, in this case, cold may lessen the pain.

Sad Case of John Peter Zenger

Established Freedom of Press

BY CHARLES HOUSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

One of the saddest stories in the history of the United States is that of John Peter Zenger. I would like you to know about it. Zenger was one of our country's earliest newspapermen. He was not very good at his job. He could not write well, his hand was heavy and prosaic, and his words fell clumsily into print. By today's standards, he was a very poor newspaperman.

Nevertheless, he was brought to the United States as a charity case from a portion of Germany. He became a printer's apprentice and when he reached adulthood he started his own little newspaper. The New York Weekly Journal. It was a four-page paper, badly printed and sometimes badly written. Although Zenger could not write well, some of his friends could, and they did. It brightened his little newspaper but it did not provide the courage which he, alone, could provide.

First Issue

His first issue came out on Nov. 5, 1733. It was at a time when newspapermen were subservient to the powers that were. The royal governors were high-handed rulers; they demanded and got the right to edit the newspapers. What was uncomplimentary to them and to the king they expunged from the newspapers. They were censors in the hardest meaning of the word.

During this time one of the Royalist governors was William Cosby, an avaricious high-timper, haughty fellow whose interests were social and selfish.

For example, when Cosby found that he could not control the Supreme Court, he simply removed its chief justice, Lewis Morris, and placed a puppet in the job, one who was a member of the royal party.

Zenger, with his newspaper, printed attack after attack upon the Cosby. Efforts were made by Cosby and by his puppet, Chief Justice Delancey, to punish Zenger, but without avail. He had — as Cosby said — "gained too much credit among the common people."

At last in 1734 Cosby arranged to have Zenger arrested. Nevertheless Zenger managed to have his newspaper published even though he was in jail. In conversation with his wife (through room and Judge Delancey, threat of the Hole in the Door) he kept up to send the news ones to his newspaper alive. The chief jailer then gave a confused but justice denied him reasonable direction to the jury.

When at last his trial was held the people of New York were highly excited. More than ever before at a court trial the citizens were strongly in evidence.

Hamilton Takes Case

Among them was a distinguished white-haired man—a stranger to young America's most prominent attorneys—a native of Philadelphia. Andrew Hamilton Zenger's today, conducted the affairs of his friends had persuaded him to defend the courageous newsman.

The trial is part of the most important sections of American freedom — that which begins with freedom of the press.

Hamilton based himself with a defense based upon the fact that the truth is not a libel. The prejudiced judge denied him the right to speak to the court on that basis. Said the judge, "You are not permitted to argue against the opinion of the court."

It was a dreadful moment, but one of the most important in history. Hamilton thanked the court and turned to the jury and said, "Then, gentlemen of the jury, it is to you what we now appeal."

Hamilton then protested the truth of Zenger's statement and appealed to the jury to establish by their judgment a denunciation of lawless power such as exhibited by the judge.

He said, "The question before the court and you gentlemen of the jury is not of small or private concern. It is not the cause of the poor printer nor of New York alone. No! It may in its consequence affect every free man that lives on the main of America. It is the cause of liberty, the cause of exposing and opposing to have Zenger arrested. Nevertheless Zenger managed to have his newspaper published even though he was in jail. In conversation with his wife (through room and Judge Delancey, threat of the Hole in the Door) he kept up to send the news ones to his newspaper alive. The chief jailer then gave a confused but justice denied him reasonable direction to the jury.

The Invigorated GOP

One test of the vitality and morale of a political party within state boundaries is the availability of candidates for principal nominations and their eagerness to have the fight for election begin. The Wisconsin Republican party, battered significantly in recent contests with a stronger Democratic ticket by such a measure is entering the new campaign season in high spirits.

Already three substantial aspirants have recorded their intention to run for the gubernatorial nomination which is perhaps the most important place on a party's state ticket. Others are scrambling for lesser places not now occupied by Republican party representatives. By contrast the Democratic candidates appear tardy, although the test is not a fair one. By all the rules of Wisconsin political behavior the campaign season has not yet truly begun. The time for the filing of nominating petitions is months distant.

Philip Kuehn, Lt. Gov. Warren Knowles and Wilbur Renk—thus far announced as candidates within the Republican party for the governorship—will provide party politicians and voters with the most generous list of choices in years. It does not seem likely that young Robert L. Sucher of Madison, who also has said he will run will be taken seriously.

Mr. Kuehn made a strong run against

Gov. Nelson, who is considerably stronger than his own party by the record of the election returns in two contests, in the 1960 gubernatorial election and is entitled by custom if not by rule to another chance. Mr. Knowles comes into the contest with a rich and broad background of experience in state affairs not to mention a highly useful exposure to politicians and voters over a period of two decades. Mr. Renk's credentials in public service are less impressive but he is a farm operator of stature and the kind of lively personality who will add zest to the struggle for the party's highest honor in state politics.

The issues in the fight for control of the state government this year almost surely will be telescoped into one broad question—financing of the unyielding demand for more and more costly state and local government services. Here the Democrats have already shown a tendency to hedge. If the Republican candidates, and especially the nominee for governor to be chosen in the September primary, faces the issue squarely and without the temerity that has characterized our state candidates for too long we would hazard that he will get a respectful response. On this question as on so many in American politics the people are ahead of their would be leaders in their understanding.

Operation Amigo

For several years many schools in the United States have sponsored exchange programs with schools in other parts of the country. Manitowoc, for instance, exchanged students with southern schools. The students learned a lot about the problems and prejudices of people in another part of the nation. They could take home what they found out about educational and recreational standards and customs. Book work may have been neglected for a few weeks but we think that the students involved probably learned some equally important things.

Now the program is being expanded by the Miami Herald to Latin America. Next month some 50 students will be flown from Peru to Miami. The visiting students will be paired off with Miami High School pupils. They will live in their counterparts' homes, attend regular classes, be taken on tours of government agencies and industries and undoubtedly attend a lot of beach parties and dances. At present the Herald management plans to bring a different group to Miami every two weeks for three months.

This type of program has been handicapped in the past by language difficulties. Since there are no plans to send North Americans south of the border, the problem still may exist. But more and more high school students in Florida are learning Spanish and Portuguese due to the closer ties with Latin America and the influx of Cuban refugees. The Latin American students usually learn English as a second language in their own high schools.

The Herald program is worth the try. It is among the youth of the nations that leadership for the ambitious and extensive new programs for Latin America must come. And it is among the youth that the Communists work the hardest.

New Leader

There appears to be a new strong man coming to the fore in the Congo which desperately needs able native leadership. But whether Gen. Victor Lundula will fill the role to the advantage of true progress in his country remains to be seen.

Lundula is a sergeant in the Belgian trained native army when independence came. Overnight he was promoted to general and put in command of all the Congolese troops then rebelling against white authority. But only two months later in September 1960 Lundula was removed from command and put under arrest when Lumumba escaped capture. Later he was released by his successor, Gen. Mobutu and headed for Stanleyville to join Gizenga's government.

But when Gizenga refused to go to Leopoldville to take part in the government of which he was deputy premier, Lundula apparently broke with him. At any rate the troops under Lundula's command took part in battling against Gizenga's forces.

At present Lundula is in command in the eastern province where many of the recent massacres have taken place.

United Nations authorities seem to feel that Lundula's first allegiance is to unity in the Congo and that murdering troops are out of control rather than acting under his orders. Lundula has had leftist sympathies although these do not mean that he leans toward the Communist way of doing things.

But there is a question as to his sincerity in backing the Congo government. There is the possibility that he is a successor to Gizenga who proved himself ineffectual in gaining support. And the UN action against Katanga may have convinced even Communist sympathizers that the best way to influence the new government is from the inside—a view which Gizenga refused to accept.

Lundula has been instrumental in preventing threatened massacres particularly of Europeans. His influence throughout the Congo is strong.

The Reds Wear Black Ties

When the Bolsheviks came to power in Russia they, cornered any formal wear or decorative trappings as holdovers from the hated aristocracy. Lenin sometimes wore suits but Stalin popularized the Georgian peasant's tunic. Now that old Joe no longer is mentioned favorably in the Soviet Union a few good comrades are daring to dress up.

The trend really may have begun with the gaudy medals with which Russian generals loaded their chests during and after World War II. But in Poland the tuxedo again is becoming a status symbol at least among the general public. For a while no good adherent to the party wore a tie but some Polish restaurants firmly required them and kept a supply on hand. Then Khrushchev popularized the dark suit worn with a tie. New Year parties in Warsaw required tuxedos or at least a dark suit but the ties and the sports jacketed stayed out on the street.

This all may be some devious Western inspired plot to get the Communists to wear our clothes and maybe start thinking like us too. But we shouldn't overlook the influence of the Communist wife who has turned to cocktail dresses and even floor length gowns. At least in this country it is the gentle member of the household who is responsible for a husband donning a tuxedo or tails and a white tie.

Cure for Cold Feet

Maybe this is a good winter in Wisconsin to rediscover a good old Finnish remedy for tight nerves, bulging waistlines and cold feet. The sauna is being picked up by beauty and health salons in many parts of the world.

Traditionally the sauna chamber was made of wood, with no windows and had rows of wooden benches for sitting at various levels according to one's tolerance of heat. The higher one sits the hotter it gets. The enthusiast starts with a hot shower and then enters the sauna chamber where rocks are kept hot to get the temperature extremely high. After about 15 minutes of pore opening the beginner emerges, wraps up in a robe and relaxes for about 20 minutes. Then he usually returns to the chamber at least twice.

The more invigorating treatment includes slapping around with birch branches to stimulate the most sluggish circulation and a jump into a snow bank. Most salons have substituted cold showers. A nap then follows. According to reports no sauna initiate has insomnia.

Some American Indians had similar processes and areas of the country such as Colorado with hot springs and natural caves have developed the same treatments. Wisconsin at least has the snow.

The New Frontier in One Year
16 Million Starving Americans
Become 60 Million Fat Americans

BY MORRIE RYSKIND

It is all very well—and only too easy—for the unthinking to rap the Kennedy administration for its lack of performance. But a little thought will show that in spite of minor setbacks here and there the basic philosophy of the regime has been steadily gaining ground. The 6,000 who forked over $100 a plate to celebrate the first year of the New Frontier knew what they were doing.

The underlying motif of course is the dynamic doctrine that no citizen should attempt for himself what the State can do for him. Though this is heresy to the mushbacks, it is revolutionarily only when compared to the aims of the Founding Fathers, who lived in a primitive period when it was presumed that self-reliance, initiative and thrift were moral assets in the individual and patriotism a sine qua non for the State.

They Were Honorable

I have no desire to disparage well meaning men like Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Jefferson for accepting the mores of their day, and I realize fully that, according to their lights, they were decent and honorable citizens of the Republic.

But the sad fact remains that the passe theories they foisted on us in a Constitution made for a horse and buggy economy as Gunnar Myrdal and Sen. Fulbright have so devastatingly revealed, account for many of the ills that beset us today. And there are still many superstitious folk among us—a result, no doubt, of the appalling shortage of classrooms and teachers—who stubbornly cling to their pagan beliefs and fail to recognize the virtue of change for change's sake.

And Cunning, Too

Pragmatically, this would not matter so much if the Fathers had had any genuine respect for the democracy they gave lip service to and allowed a majority to carry out its mandate. But they cunningly placed all sorts of so-called safeguards into the Constitution so that it requires at least a 23 vote to throw the outworn sections into the discard and get the new motor running for our trip to Utopia.

It must be completely frustrating to a man who has been elected President by over 100,000 votes—just over—to realize that Congress will not yield its constitutional taxing powers to the commander in chief, even in a national emergency, because of a silly putnamical taboo. Were it not for this almost fanatical aversion to allowing the executive to usurp its legislative rights Mr. Kennedy might have fulfilled every campaign promise.

He might justifiably backed by the results in the Gallup Electoral College which gives him 90 per cent of the Democratic vote and 60 per cent of the Republican vote, he might have censured congressional and administration speeches as he has the military. But he keeps his temper and prefers to go slowly, the mark of the true Fabian.

Thus the new budget he proposes, though record breaking for peace time, does not double or triple the old mark but merely will raise our debt limit by $10 billion or so. We are nowhere near the trillion dollar budget we need but easy does it. And slowly but surely the penny pinches are being pushed to oblivion.

For those rabid rightists who insist on yelling and screaming at every forward looking proposal, I offer one thing alone that will make Mr. Kennedy's place in history secure. I remind them that in his campaign for office he was the first to call attention

The Appleton Crescent in noticing that a recruiting office has been opened by Sgt. Ross of the United States Army to recruit men for the regular service makes some remarks about the preference which should be given to the volunteer service, which remarks are wrong in our estimation.

Congress increased the regular army to 43,000 and the loyal states are depended upon to make up the full amount. The volunteer regiments are all full or nearly so, whereas the regular army needs at least 20,000 men more.

The regulars are better provided for in clothing, rations, medical attendance, etc. than the volunteers. The officers of the regiment that Sgt. Ross is recruiting for are among the best in the service. Their commander is Maj. Gen. Franklin and second in command is Brig.

Under the Capital Dome
School Aids Becoming State Political Issue

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — State politicians are searching for themes as they plan their campaigns for votes. The preliminary press releases and speeches indicate plainly that one will be the problem of accommodating the educational system to the crushing increase of responsibilities represented by the exploding birth rate, on the one hand, and the increasing ratio of enrollment in colleges and universities on the other.

No one who is not blind to the realities of public affairs today can doubt this is one of the crucial problems facing the state and local governments in the immediate future. Indeed so general is the apprehension about it among politicians and policymakers that there is an increasingly fatalistic tendency to assume that it cannot be handled through local government and must be defaulted to Washington through the instrument of federal aid to the schools.

Basically the problem is one of money, although problems of organization, adjustment of curriculum and instruction schedules, construction and staff qualifications are inevitably involved also.

It is plain that thoughtful educators are anticipating some of the tax pains involved in their dilemma by volunteering for adjustments in the traditional school arrangements as in the talk about a longer school year at the elementary and high school level now coming from gave this situation of objectionable moves, some thought and a little research. May I ask what research he gave it because, according to your article "Year's Box Office Boffos" published in the Jan. 28 edition of your paper, the top ten money makers include only one movie which is listed in the Legion of Decency as objectionable in part for all. At least five of those cited are on the general patron age list.

Now if his research was done in the city of Appleton it speaks very badly of the people in this vicinity. Evidently they are not typical moviegoers, contrivance or the movie houses here would not be nearly empty, as he stated. Actually I really don't believe he did much research or if he did he surely would have seen the long lines of both children and adults waiting to attend a good movie. I myself have stood in a block long line in both Appleton and Kaukauna for one.

Well, anyway, thanks James Auer for a very informative article and please see that Jingo gets a copy.

the state department of public instruction, and a more efficient employment of state college and university classrooms and other facilities that is being talked about by other state officials.

But even if some of these changes that were being dismissed out of hand by the professionals as recently as ten years ago come about it is crystal clear that many additional millions of tax dollars will be required for the indefinite future.

That is the problem that politicians won't face as candidly and as realistically as they do the problem in general terms.

One prospective candidate for office on the Democratic ticket is currently worrying in his public speeches about the fact that the state has not increased its state aids to the local schools sufficiently to permit a higher ratio of state support there and a reduction in liability upon the local property taxpayer.

THE BIG QUESTION

His complaint is true enough. In spite of multi-million dollar biennial boosts in the state's appropriations for the local schools, the proportion of the state support has remained virtually constant at around 25 per cent.

To many sensitive taxpayers it may seem hard to believe that biennial boosts by multi-million dollar sums are required merely to maintain the pace, but it is true. Currently for example the state is paying out $148,800,000 in its biennial budget in high school and elementary school aids. That is nearly a third of the state's total biennial expenditure and it is some $22,000,000 higher than the preceding biennial figure. It is a case of running faster to maintain the same position, and the problem is going to become more severe before it becomes easier.

To the politician desiring to use it as a political crutch, moreover, the taxpaying citizen, the parent or the student might very well suggest that suggestions for solving it are in order.

What direction shall Wisconsin tax policy take in the years ahead now that the state has taken the first cautious, almost timorous step in the direction of tax revision? The issue is here and it cannot be wished away.

What 100 New Families Mean to City

Reprinted from Community Planning — Wisconsin in Fox Valley Regional Planning Commission Newsletter

Consider what 100 new families mean to a community. In addition to 100 housing units, 100 new families will require:

- 22 new grade school rooms and 165 new high school rooms at a cost of about $145,000.
- 4 new school teachers (and to find:)
- 1 acre of land for a grammar school, 1 acre for a high school, 1 acre for parks and 1 acre for playgrounds and play fields.
- 64 employees in the police department (an increase in the police budget of $4,510 each year).
- 2 of a new fireman (an increase of $2,820 in the fire budget).
- 4 new persons on the payroll to do such things as cleaning streets, collecting garbage, collecting taxes, looking after parks and city health ($12,000 to $15,000 additional budget).
- 10,000 gallons of water per day will have to be pumped by the water department.
- 1 new hospital bed (price $10,000).
- 300 new volumes in the library (add $675 to the library's annual budget).
- a fraction of a jail cell.
- a fraction of a visiting nurse.
- and 100 families will own 140 automobiles which will of course, add to traffic congestion and parking problems.

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy made the front pages the other day with the statement that "major racketeers" are moving into Wall Street and the Justice Department is "making some progress" in investigating the underworld's attempted invasion. Specifically mentioned by reporters as an illustration of gangster infiltration into the securities business was Carmine Lombardozzi, an ex-convict who was a delegate to the notorious Apalachin, N.Y., "gangland convention" in 1957.

With a deep bow to Kennedy, I suggest his blast is belated, and with all respect for the reporters, I say flatly their choice of Lombardozzi as an illustration is stale. Such gangsters as Lombardozzi are now "old hat" in the stock markets, are being succeeded by much more subtle criminals. In this series of five columns, I'll submit documentation of every word. To summarize first:

Long Ago
(1) The mobsters aren't "moving" into the securities business in New York; they moved in long ago and are now actually shifting their operations to other bases. As far back as August 3, 1939, I reported that "a network of ex-criminals has been operating in the New York securities business."

Among the names I mentioned then were Lombardozzi, Stanley Younger, described at the time by the New York attorney general's office as a "pistol parking promoter" and convicted again in 1961 of attempted grand larceny for his part in selling the stock of National Photocopy, a nonexistent corporation; Arthur Tortorello, reported in 1959 by the attorney general to be "a member of the Brooklyn mob as well as a henchman for Carmine Lombardozzi" and back in the courts as recently as this past October. These names are scarcely new.

(2) Because of the unprecedentedly stiff laws passed in New York since 1959 on the urging of Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz to curb abuses and force disclosure by securities salesmen of any criminal record, the mobsters are moving away from New York and into other areas.

"The worst regions now are Florida, New Jersey and Maryland," says Lefkowitz.

(3) A new breed of unscrupulous but more sophisticated promoters is trying to infiltrate the securities business. Tops on the New York attorney general's black list now are:

Here's Who
ROBERT LELAND BRADFORD: "He's currently serving a jail sentence for allegedly fraudulent activities in the sale of Bradford Audio Corp. stock, is described by Lefkowitz 'as one of the most artful and dangerous men in modern financial history.'"

CHARLES AND EDWARD LESER: These are brothers and ex-convicts residing in Oyster Bay, Long Island. Only a few weeks ago, the New York attorney general summoned them for questioning in connection with a scheme to produce a motion picture portraying the "Life of Saint Patrick." This case (details in a future column) is now in the litigation phase.

NORMAN N. RANKOW: His address is Rego Park, N.Y. He's also an ex-convict, alleged to be

Andy West Jr., 36, former pinsetter was evicted from his four-foot galvanized pipe, located on the beach, Segundo, Calif., that has been his home for the past nine months. West told Officer, Don Timoney, left, that automatic pinsetters had taken over his profession and he subsisted on odd jobs. Asked why he had been living there he said, "The rent is right. I'm crazy about the view, and I can't stand nosy chambermaids, gabby neighbors or fussy landladies."

a principal in the "Saint Patrick" deal.

GEORGE FUTTERMAN: His criminal record dates back to 1933 and he too is involved in the allegedly fraudulent "Saint Patrick" scheme.

Real Danger
(4) The great danger to the innocent investor today is not from "boiler rooms"—so called because the noises made by the high-pressure salesmen using the phones to call all over the country and unload worthless stocks on the gullible—are reminiscent of

Rather, the threat lies in the public's unreasonable greed for "hot" new stock issues and the public's failure to make even an elementary check on who and what is behind a stock offering. The "leaks" are among securities salesmen who represent firms not belonging to any exchange and over whom it is increasingly obvious that there is not sufficient supervision. New York has been and is cracking down in this sphere—but few other states are.

By alerting the whole nation to the fringe of criminals in the securities business, Kennedy has done all of us a service.

Chinese Using Albanian Radio To Taunt Nikita

Urge Soviet Union To Get Tougher Over W. Germany

BY DAVID NICHOL
Chicago Daily News Service

BONN — Germany apparently is one of the trouble spots where Red China wants the Soviets to get much tougher.

This argument, as the more general ones about Communist ideology which are wracking the Communist bloc, is being conducted through tiny Albania.

Monitors at Radio Free Europe in Munich say Albania in recent broadcasts has been taunting Moscow for its failure to proceed with the signing of a separate peace treaty with East Germany's Communist regime.

Khrushchev Assailed

Albania, plainly speaking in the tongue of Mao Tse-tung's China, virtually has accused Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev of cowardice in the face of Western resistance.

Khrushchev has set a whole series of ultimate deadlines for such a pact since his original demand more than three years ago, but has backed away from each of them in turn.

Moscow Radio, replying in Albanian, has been denying just as vigorously that the Kremlin has any "fear." The Soviet Union, it says, "has stated categorically that it will not permit talks about the Germany question to be exploited for further delays of a peaceful settlement."

"The Western powers have had plenty of time to think about the matter," Moscow Radio says. "A start must be made now upon a practical solution."

No New Deadline

The Soviet Union, it says, still will proceed with a separate treaty if the West is "disinclined" to cooperate in the triple division of Germany. Significantly, no new deadline was fixed.

Moscow has insisted that West and East Germany be recognized legally and officially as separate entities and that West Berlin become a third and independent territory cut off from Western military defense and economic support.

The Deutsche Zeitung of Cologne, which often reflects the views of West German industry, said today that "no more one-sided bill ever has been presented."

Appleton's Teen-Agers Enjoy Latest Twist Music

The Twist is a Real swingin' affair, as Sharon Hay demonstrated Friday evening at the Recreation Department dance at Edison School. Many of Appleton's young people stand on the sidelines to watch when a couple does the real Twist step.

From Maine to California and from Key West to Seattle, teen-agers, and very often their parents, are doing the latest dance sensation, the Twist. Appleton was not to be missed in the cross-country trek, and the Twist has taken the fancy of young people here also.

The dance, originated by Chubby Checker, has stirred as much controversy as the Shimmy of the Twenties. It has been declared 'dangerous' by doctors and numerous injuries have been credited to dancers' over-enthusiasm.

The Recreation Dept. sponsored dance Friday evening at Edison School revealed that only a small percentage of teen-agers actually did the real Twist. Most of the dancers put their old favorite steps to the Twist music.

You Don't Even need a partner to enjoy the Twist. The movement is mostly one of rhythm and, even when dancing together, a couple almost never touches hands. Above, Kay Doughty, Carol Klitzke, Neysa Dickey and Cheryl Johne practice improving their skill at the nation's newest dance craze.

At Left, Dennis Volpe and Carol Klitzke twist to the rhythm of the country's newest dance. The current craze has been called a 'tremendous release for everyone' by a Chicago psychologist, who cited the tensions of our times as a reason for the dance's popularity. At right, an unidentified dancer turns as she does the step which is fun and so uncomplicated that even beginning dancers can do it.

Chanel Bag Becomes Paris Fad

PARIS (AP) — Every woman worth her fashion salt this winter has what is popularly known as a Chanel bag.

The object of the widespread desire is a medium-sized, soft-leather, quilted envelope with a long chain handle. Although Coco Chanel has made the same bag with slight variations for seven years, the fad, with a will quite its own, literally unleashed itself in the fall.

The purse, with its characteristic quilting and chain, has been copied by Paris' two biggest department stores, by specialty handbag stores, even by Monoprix department stores.

The real Chanel bag is made of softest chamois leather. Navy and black versions are lined in red. Chanel's double C trademark is stamped on the inside flap. It is roomy, opening like an accordion to disclose three separate compartments.

To top it off, a current refinement entwines a fine leather strip through the loops of the delicate chain handle.

Ultimate in Jersey
The ultimate is a white jersey quilted version which no honest shopgirl could afford to own. Cost of the real thing: $60-$100.

True to her principles, couture Chanel does not resent being copied. "If people can't afford to buy a real Chanel, I'd rather they bought a fake Chanel with the idea of Chanel in mind," she has said.

Paris' big Printemps department store has been authorized to call its quilted models "Chanel style" and has decorated its windows with the slogan "I love chains." Five hundred copies which ranged in price from $14-$25 were sold the first month.

The dimstore version, also leather, ingeniously quilts only one side of the purse, thus charging a mere $4. Three thousand dimstore "chanel" have been sold.

There's no doubt the little purse has become a new Paris uniform.

Correction

An incorrect headline Sunday indicated that Miss Lynn Ann Roeck and James C. Prasher were married Saturday in a Catholic ceremony, when in fact the wedding took place at St. John's United Church of Christ. The Rev. John Seidler officiated at the double ring candlelight rite.

Troth Told of Miss Blondey, Mr. Meydam

The engagement of Miss June Blondey and Robert Meydam has been announced by her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Blondey, Hortonville Road, New London, Minn.

As president of the Dayton branch of the National League of American Pen Women, Inc., Mrs. Tenney hit upon a novel program to entertain her fellow club members. As they entered her home, she gave each a 6 x 6 inch ceramic tile decorated only with a pastel underglaze. She also supplied each visitor with several deeper-colored liquid glazes.

The guests then were asked to dip their fingers in the glaze and make fingerprints on the tiles. Then they made designs around the fingerprints and signed their names. The tiles were fired, coated with a clear glaze and fired again.

This process approximates methods used in factories producing quality ceramic tile for floors and walls. The result is a product that withstands damage from moisture, extreme heat, wear and corrosion.

The fingerprint idea caught on and has been keeping Mrs. Tenney and her guests busy ever since. Favorite patterns feature flowers and animals. Mrs. Tenney finishes the designs for her less artistic friends.

Mrs. Tenney has used 46 of the decorative tiles to cover her back door. Others serve as trivets and hot plates. Still others have been used on table tops.

Not long ago Mrs. Tenney made six wrought iron tables. She surfaced them with her tiles, using an average of 25 tiles on each table.

She also has an attractive vanity with a counter made of 44 ceramic tile squares. Tile also covers bookcases and dressers in the Tenney homestead.

Miss Blondey

Meydam is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Meydam, route 1, Fremont.

Miss Blondey, a graduate of Washington High School, New London, is employed at Kimberly Clark Corp., Neenah. Her fiancé was graduated from Weyauwega High School and is engaged in the farming.

A wedding date has not been set.

Fingerprint Guests for Party Fun

If you're looking for a new way to entertain guests, try fingerprinting them. If you follow the idea conceived by Mrs. Roger Tenney, a Dayton, Ohio housewife, the results will be both decorative and gratifying.

Participating organizations set up booths for bakery goods, pillow cases, pot holders, aprons, candy, garden plants, rummage, articles made by the handicapped, jewelry, books, fancy work and other homemade items.

All Fox City area clubs are eligible to participate. Entry blanks may be obtained at Trudell's at Valley Fair.

Good Neighbor Fair semi-annual Good Neighbor Fair has been scheduled from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. May 5. Forty-four organizations have reserved space for the event. There is room for 60. Joseph P. Trudell, chairman of the event, has announced.

Our Children

Better to Limit Telephone Hours

BY ANGELO PATRI

The telephone is an essential of life today. It is truly a miraculous instrument that denies distance, time and loneliness. It is indispensable to business and to social life; consequently, few homes are without it. Children soon learn to use it and here is where its use comes into question.

First, it is essential that all children, from the youngest to oldest, know how to use it and when. There should be a handy list of numbers to be called in emergency and every member of the family know where it is and be able to find it quickly. This is the functional use of the phone in the house and easily learned and accepted.

When the sons and daughters of the family begin to form close friendships with their classmates, difficulties are likely to arise, especially with the girls. Girls seem to talk offener and longer and with less real cause than boys. Boys seem to be called offener than they call during early teen-age. Parents soon learn that they have to lay down some rules and regulations about these calls that are more frequent in the evening and at homework time. A long chat while the homework waits can have disastrous effects on school tasks. Expecting a call during homework hours is as much of an interruption as the call itself and the work must suffer.

Set Certain Hours

Parents would be wise to talk this over with their boys and girls of "call-up" stage and come to an agreement about it. It might be well to agree that no calls are to be made between seven and nine—the usual homework hours. Should a call come in, the message could be taken or the caller told that the one wanted is engaged but will be free at a later time when the call can be answered personally.

Some such arrangement is necessary to allow the concentration homework demands for its thorough completion. A student who is expecting a call from boy friend or girl friend while looking at a problem in arithmetic is not going to get far with it until that call is completed and its reception may further distract the student's attention.

If all concerned understand that a certain period in the evenings of school day is sacred to quiet and study, things will work out better for the students.

Today's Etiquette

BY LOUISE DAVIS

BRIDE IS BEGGAR

My 20 year old daughter consented to be a bridesmaid for a school classmate. She was told by the bride's mother that being an attendant requires that she must give a shower. The mother telephoned me with further instructions, saying that she doesn't like home showers and they want it held some place where 160 guests can be accommodated. I was also told that there must be corsages for her, the bride and the attendants and that the refreshment table centerpiece must be of artificial flowers so that her daughter can use it in the future. We would like your advice and to hear your comments for none of this seems right or correct. The mother even told me that the groom's sister was to be a bridesmaid and that when she refused to give a shower, she was banished from the bridal party.

Louise Davis Answers:

This ill-mannered effrontery makes the blood boil. Even if you are millionaires, no one has the right to suggest or tell you and your daughter that a shower must be given, nor may anyone stipulate the number of guests. Just estimate the minimum cost of hiring a hall for 160 people, the refreshments, invitations, corsage and centerpiece. Add to that figure a guess at the price of your daughter's gown and other shower gifts. You'll say, "Wow!", just

Your Problems

Suicide Attempt Indicates Person Desperately Disturbed

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What are your views on suicide? Do you think a suicide attempt is a sign that a person is insecure? I've heard that some people make a show of committing suicide just to attract attention or to make another person feel sorry for them. How do you go about finding out if the suicide attempt was sincere?

Also, have you ever heard of anyone who actually died from slashing his wrist? This is done a lot in the movies but I've never heard of it actually working in real life.

Please print this letter because a lot of people would like to know the answers but they are ashamed to ask for fear someone might think they are contemplating suicide themselves. —Not Me

Dear Not You: A person so depressed that death seems more desirable than life is desperately disturbed. To describe such a person as "insecure" is the same as describing a cancer patient as "not feeling well."

An individual who is determined to end his life usually succeeds. If a first attempt fails he'll try again. For example, the woman who wishes only to frighten or punish her husband or her lover may swallow a handful of pills, or she may scratch her wrists with a razor. The woman who means business will put a gun to her temple or she'll jump out of a 25-story window. She knows that no one can step in at the last moment and "save" her.

Wrist-slashing of course, can be fatal but usually it is a dramatic attempt to attract attention.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know you receive a lot of questions that are hard to answer and you do pretty well, but I'll bet you have never run into this one before.

I go with a boy who wears glasses. How far down should his sideburns come? My boy friend's sideburns are about three inches lower than his glass frames and he looks like a hood.

Please print this letter if you agree with me. If you don't agree with me, just skip it. —No Square

Dear No Square: I don't care for long sideburns — with or without glasses. Here's your letter and I hope it helps.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When I was 17 I got mixed up with a no-good skunk. I was a know-it-all kid and nobody could tell me anything. I ran off with him and we lived in one rat-trap after another. He kept telling me we'd get married "later."

He claimed he had a job at a garage. I called up one day and they had never heard of him. I figured he was getting his money in some crooked way and I was right. When the police came, he denied everything and told me not to worry. He got three years for armed robbery. I was then four months pregnant. I went home and begged my folks to take me in. They did. Now I have a darling two-year old son. I had a letter from the skunk yesterday saying he'll be out on parole soon. He claims we are automatically married in the eyes of the law because of the baby. I'm scared to death of him but I never want to see him again. What can I do? —Molly

Dear Molly: There's no such thing as an "automatic marriage." Write and inform him that if he comes near your house you'll notify his parole officer. If he threatens you, get police protection. You owe him nothing.

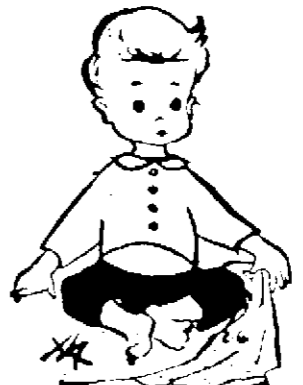

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Choosing Wall Colors

Before choosing a new wall color, study the effect of light on the color that's on the walls now. Note the great difference between areas in direct sun and corners in shadow, behind wall surface near lamp illumination and far from it. The color changes to so many shades as intensities and angles of light brighten, lighten, dull and darken it—which explains why a color judged as a single shade in a paint sample can look right in the store and wrong on the walls.

Keep the effect of light in mind at the paint counter. Don't make the mistake of looking at samples in just one position, and never flat on the counter. Since walls are vertical and take light differently than horizontal surfaces do, hold samples vertically, turned toward light and angled away from it. Thus the sample becomes more helpful, but the color should still be tried on the room. If the only available samples are too small, take home a small quantity of paint in the color that seems right now. Paint patches on boards and set them up against every wall, and all areas of wall, to test the color under actual light conditions in the room. Change the paint mixture if need be, and repeat try-outs until the exact shade is ready for the full quantity of paint to be matched to it.

Mrs. A. N.: "My birch kitchen cabinets are finished in a wheat shade, and have mottled red counter tops which are almost matched by most of the floor. It also has a foot-wide green border and the ceiling is pale green. I'd like to cut down the number of colors in the room and change

PET DOCTOR

By A. W. Moller, D.V.M.

Q. What is distemper and what causes it? Mrs. J. P. McQuillan, New York City.

A. Distemper is an infectious disease of dogs. It can affect dogs of all ages but is particularly common in young dogs. Caused by a virus related to the human measles virus, it isn't in any way transmitted to humans or to other animals except dogs and related species. While it can occur at any time after birth, the mother's antibodies usually protect the puppy until it is nine to 12 weeks of age. The most common symptoms are runny eyes, pneumonia, intestinal upsets, fits and occasional skin rash. If any of these symptoms appear in a puppy, vaccination may be suspected. Vaccination against distemper is quite safe and with improved vaccines is quite efficient. There is little excuse for a dog getting distemper these days.

SEAMS TO ME

By Patricia Scott

Nothing looks much sillier than an apron dangling over slacks, but you do want to keep your "trousers" clean when working with something messy.

This apron is designed specifically for the job. I admit it is something to giggle over, but it's easy to make, and can be thrown into your washing machine. It is fun to wear, and makes a wonderful conversation piece.

You'll need: 2 yards of striped mattress ticking; 1/2 yard of red broadcloth; and 2 strips of elastic.

Measure the distance from your waist to about 3 inches below your knees. Add one inch for top and bottom seam allowance. This is the length of your apron. Cut two pieces (apron and lining) as long as this measurement, and 22 inches wide. Fold the two pieces in half lengthwise, and mark the point on the fold 13 inches below the waist. Now, along the bottom edge, measure 8 inches from the open ends of the piece toward the fold and mark. Draw a line connecting these two points, forming a pants leg. Cut away the extra fabric quite safe and with improved vaccines is quite efficient. There is little excuse for a dog getting distemper these days.

New Apron For Slacks

Pin the waistband to waist of the apron, right sides together, and with raw edges meeting. Center the waistband on the apron so the loose tie ends are the same length on each side. Stitch the waistband to the apron.

Place the apron and lining pieces right sides together. Stitch them together around all sides except top waist, allowing a 1/2 inch seam allowance.

Trim seams, turn to right side and press.

Fold and pin two 1-inch deep pleats over each hip at the top of the apron. Then, stitch them into position.

Pin the waistband to waist of the apron, right sides together, and with raw edges meeting. Center the waistband on the apron so the loose tie ends are the same length on each side. Stitch the waistband to the apron.

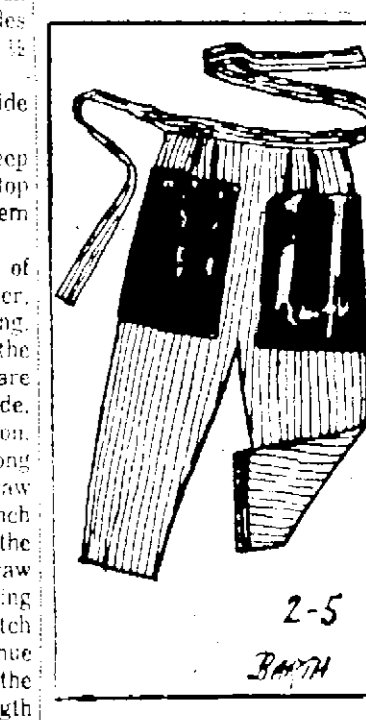

Fold the band over to the wrong side of the apron. Turn the raw edge of the band under 1/2 inch and pin it to the apron. Fold the loose tie ends in half with raw edges turned in 1/2 inch. Starting at the end of one tie, top stitch the open edges closed. Continue on, stitching the waistband to the apron and then across the length of the other tie.

To make the patch pockets, cut the red broadcloth into two pieces, each 10 inches by 24 inches. Fold each pocket in half, right sides together so that they measure 10 inches by 12 inches. Stitch down both 12-inch sides of the pockets.

leaving the 10-inch sides open. Turn in the raw edges of the pocket's bottom 1/2 inch and press. Pin the pockets to the apron, as shown in the illustration, and top-stitch them in place.

Attach a strip of elastic to the bottom edge of each leg on the wrong side, to hold apron's legs in place around the calves of the legs.

The Ailing House Clean Holes For Spray In Shower

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: Our shower has an uneven spray; some of the holes seem clogged and water doesn't run through them. Is there any way to remedy this?

A: Yes. Remove the face of the shower head. Then clean the back surface with fine steel wool. Use a coarse needle to free the holes.

Q: What is the safest way to thaw frozen pipes? We have a vacation cabin which we use occasionally during the winter and sometimes the water freezes in a section of pipe. We don't want to invest in heating cable for this.

A: To thaw the frozen pipe, soak very heavy cloth in hot water and wrap these around the frozen section. Don't risk a blow torch!

Fireplace Mortar

Q: We find the grey of the mortar between the stones in our fireplace looks very dull. How can we make this a brighter color?

A: Use a cement paint, available in powder form to be mixed with water, to color the mortar. Be sure the surface of the mortar is thoroughly clean and free of any trace of soil, grease, wax, etc., before applying the paint; follow directions on the paint container carefully.

Q: How can we wash painted siding? It doesn't need repainting yet, but is soiled looking.

A: Scrub the siding with soap and warm water, or a mild household detergent solution, followed by ample rinsing with clear water. Be careful to start at the bottom of a wall and work upwards, doing a small section at a time. Otherwise, dirty water running down over dry, soiled areas will leave streaks which are very difficult to remove.

Musty Furniture Odor

Q: We bought an old "side board" and have removed the mirror above it and refinished the chest part. However, there is still a musty odor in the drawers and we hesitate to store linen in it. We want to use the chest in the dining room. How can we get rid of the odor?

A: Remove the drawers and air them outdoors in the sun for several days. Then shellac all bare wood surfaces with a thin coat of pure, fresh, white shellac thinned half-and-half with denatured alcohol. Frequently, placing a liberal amount of camphor, either balls or flakes, in each drawer and allowing this to remain about ten days with the drawers tightly closed, will remove a musty odor. Activated charcoal, often used to deodorize refrigerators, is also worth a try.

Q: We have had the linoleum on our kitchen floor for quite a few years. It is, basically, still in good condition, but it is very dull and absorbent; waxing doesn't help. Can you suggest any remedy?

A: Probably much of the linoleum surface has been affected or removed by repeated use of harsh caustic cleaners, permanently damaging the finish. However, you might try the following: Thoroughly wash and rinse the floor; allow to dry completely. Then apply a liberal coating of boiled linseed oil, allowing to remain for a few hours; then wash with a mild soap-saline with clear water and wipe dry. Do not use the floor for at least ten hours after the last washing; then apply floor wax. You also can well consider a coat of floor enamel.

at the rear of the store, the first man ripped the telephone from the courtesy desk and the three left. They drove west on Murdoch Street toward Algoma Boulevard which is State 116. Their car was described as being a 1959 or 1960 Chevrolet sedan, deep green or black in color and with out-of-state license plates.

One man was described as being between 25 and 30, about 5 feet, 7 inches tall, stocky build, long brown hair and wearing an old, dark wool jacket, dark trousers, white shirt and grey gloves. The second man is between 30 and 35, about 6 feet tall, slender and wearing an olive green cap and matching jacket and dark trousers.

The third man was said to be in his late teens or early 20's, 140 pounds, medium height and wearing a black leather jacket and brown or black cap.

The only personnel in the store at the time were Stark, a bookkeeper who was in the office, the butchers and several youths helping to unload a semi-trailer at the rear of the store.

Police Inspector Elmer Ludwig had been in the store only minutes before the holdup, returning $15 which was to redeem a worthless check someone had cashed at the store. When he was in the store he noticed a man fitting the description of the second man waiting at the bread counter for the bakery driver to bring in fresh bread.

Try Old Hat Trick for Man's Disposition Lift

BY JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

The subtle way to change the man you married is to persuade him to try the female way of improving his disposition — by buying a new hat.

Not only the right sized hat, but the right kind of hat for his face and physique, will change his appearance, claim authorities among the nation's hat manufacturers.

But even though you may know the circumference of your husband's head, you can't buy a hat and take it home to him. However, the hatiers admit that a man's better off if a woman goes along to help him choose.

Besides coming in a variety of sizes, men's toppers are sold in regular, long and wide ovals.

The crowns of hats also vary, differing in height and fullness. Most popular brim widths fall between 1 and 3/4 to 1 and 1/2.

In order to guide a man properly when you get him to the haberdashery, you must know how to match the combinations of crown, brim and style to the facial characteristics and - or - physique of your man.

Is he a tall man with average build? A short crown, usually tapered, or a telescoped style looks best. The lower crown keeps him from looking gangly.

Or is he tall with a big build? A full crown with a snap brim is good. The hat experts claim this type can also wear a homburg.

Is he short, slight of build? A higher crown will add to his stature. Tapered crowns with narrow brims, turned up and snap, are flattering.

What if he's short and plump? Lead him away from the extremes. A medium crown with moderate brim, snap or turned up, is better for him.

If the man you want to change (in appearance) is average in height and build, then all he needs to do is match his hat to his facial characteristics. For example:

If he's an egghead, (with plenty of forehead) better urge him to try a tapered crown with a medium brim that has a roll or short snap.

If he's lantern-jawed, (a square face) a hat with a medium, rounded crown and an average brim turned off the face will soften the angles.

If he's moon-faced, short and full) a medium crown with a very slight taper seems to lengthen it. Widest brims are best for him.

If he has fat jowls, (generally a deep full face) have him try a medium height hat with a fuller crown and an average brim, usually snapped.

If his face is like a jelly bean, (long and slender) hand him a tapered, medium crown and an average brim, with a wide snap.

If his face is short and slender, suggest a hat with a low crown shaped, high and narrow at the front with an average to narrow brim. He will wear off the face styles well.

If he has a long nose, a hat with medium width crown and a brim wide enough to extend beyond the nose will de-emphasize it.

If his chin recedes, a low tapered crown and medium brim will seem to give it more size.

Most facial characteristics match physical types, hat manufacturers insist. That is, the short fat faced man usually has a stocky, round figure to go with it. However there are exceptions.

In these instances you should talk your husband into trying the types best for his facial characteristics, next those for his stature, and choose the best among them.

He'll be a new man.

West leads the king of clubs, and you follow with the deuce. He continues with the ace of clubs, and South drops the queen.

West switches to the deuce of spades, and you win with the king. You return the three of spades, and South overtakes the queen with dummy's ace to try a diamond finesse.

South's queen of diamonds wins, and he leads out the ace of trumps. By his mode of play you should know that he has some sort of trump problem. He cannot be worried about the king of trumps since he has not tried a finesse. His problem must be the queen.

Helpful Play

South furrows his brow and moves his lips soundlessly. You know what is going on because this is the way opponents look when they are busy counting the distribution.

Finally South cashes the ace of diamonds and ruffs a low diamond in the dummy. This is where you make your helpful play. You drop the king of diamonds.

This play cannot cost anything, since South can easily ruff out your king after drawing trumps. You can therefore make this kind of play as naturally as though you had started with only three diamonds.

This is your real reason for dropping the king. From the play of the black suits South should know that you started with three clubs and four spades. If he thinks you had only three diamonds, he will have to give you credit for three hearts.

Sure enough, declarer leads the jack of hearts from dummy and lets it ride for a finesse. Your partner wins with the queen of trumps, and South is down one.

If you hadn't dropped the king of diamonds, South would have known about your four diamonds. Then he would have known you had only two hearts, and he would have refused the trump finesse.

Partner opens with one diamond, and the next player passes. You hold: S K J 9 3 H 7 3 D K 10 8 4 C 10 8 2. What do you say?

Rock 'n Roll Singers Delay Honeymoon

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Rock 'n' roller Duane Eddy and vocalist Miriam Johnson hope to seal away this week for a brief honeymoon because of Eddy's work commitments after their marriage Saturday.

Miss Johnson, 18, is an ex-gospel singer from Phoenix, Ariz., who sometimes sings with Eddy's band. Eddy is 22. Best man at the church wedding was TV personality Dick Clark.

Roadblocks were set up on all roads leading out of Oshkosh by the police departments but were withdrawn later in the morning.

Police Inspector Elmer Ludwig had been in the store only minutes before the holdup, returning $15 which was to redeem a worthless check someone had cashed at the store. ## OAS Rebellion Plot Uncovered in France

Avenue Franklin Roosevelt in downtown Paris Saturday night.

Authorities said documents seized included a list of police officers to be assassinated before the launching of an anti-government plot. National security police who studied the documents have begun a series of followup investigations.

Thousands of riot police, 32 tanks, 100 squad cars and light armored vehicles waited on the alert on the outskirts of Paris. Troops took strategic positions in key Algerian cities to counter the threat of an uprising by the underground Secret Army Organization of Europeans fighting to keep Algeria French.

For days high sources have leaked the word that secret negotiations between De Gaulle and the Algerian rebels toward a cease-fire are well advanced. Few observers, however, believed that the time had arrived when the French president, who has dedicated himself to settling the rebellion, could announce a peace settlement.

De Gaulle is a leader who keeps his own counsel. But there was growing speculation that he would express guarded optimism about the prospects for an Algerian settlement.

Rallying Call

He is also expected to denounce the rightist Secret Army and make another rallying call for support by declaring his Fifth Republic, which grew out of the Algerian crisis, has brought the country stability and prosperity.

One of the Secret Army's favorite tactics is to sabotage radio and TV transmitters during important government broadcasts, then run in Secret Army broadcasts on the same wavelength.

To counter this tactic a heavy guard was posted at the base of the Eiffel Tower, which has an important TV relay installation atop it. Guards were doubled around radio and television installations in Algeria.

An estimated 100 European diehards were arrested in the Algerian capital in an effort to stall off some of the expected trouble.

Reports Stalled

Leaders of the Algerian rebel government were meeting in Tunis to study reports of its emissaries who have been holding secret sessions with the French on a cease-fire and steps toward independence after 131 years of French rule.

Should the rebel hierarchy approve the broad lines of a settlement reportedly reached by negotiators, final approval must still be given by the National Revolutionary Council which serves as a rebel parliament.

There were reports that should the rebel leaders turn down the cease-fire terms reportedly agreed on at the negotiating level, De Gaulle will go ahead without them to set up a provisional regime to chart Algeria's road to independence.

Both De Gaulle and the rebels were confronted by the vow of the rightist underground army — to carry on the fight to prevent the rich territory from passing to Moslem rule.

year. Of the total, 5,500 acres were harvested, Orrin Meyer, secretary of the growers association said.

Walter Page, president of the firm, said he had no comment on the statement originating from the growers.

Sale of the sugar beet processing plant was rumored in the last few weeks. Meyer said a Michigan firm had offered to purchase the Green Bay plant. These plans did not materialize, Meyer said, because of a lack of farmers providing needed acreage.

Three alternatives have been left open to growers, Meyer said. They are:

Growers purchase the plant and begin a cooperative.

Abandon the beet industry. Pledge a total of 9,000 acres for next year. If this is done, a buyer might be found who will operate the plant, Meyer said.

At one time Wisconsin was the top beet growing state in the nation. Some 20,000 acres were grown in Calumet, Outagamie, Manitowish, Brown, Fond du Lac and Dodge counties.

After the airport ceremony, Adoula was driven to the State Department for meetings with Ball and others.

It is not likely the 38-year-old moderate Congolese leader will be promised any new U. S. aid while visiting here. However, informants said, plans are afoot to extend further economic assistance to his country through the United Nations.

A two-hour stag luncheon at the White House and a one-hour conference with Kennedy follow. In the afternoon, Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on Africa, is host at a tea in Adoula's honor. In the evening Williams entertains the Adoulas at his residence.

week closer ties with the European Economic Community does not mean that Japan will be frozen out of the lucrative American market.

Kennedy told the Japanese leader the United States is seeking favorable trade treatment of Japan as well as itself in the EEC.

Kennedy, an expert and tireless campaigner, whirled about Tokyo all morning on behalf of his brother's New Frontier program.

In quick succession, Kennedy visited the prime minister, Foreign Minister Zenaro Kosaka, Justice Minister Koshiro Ueki and both houses of the Diet.

Eager Crowds

Everywhere Kennedy went he was greeted by crowds of eager young people. At the Justice Ministry office girls dressed in blue frocks jumped up and down and squealed. Kennedy stopped and shook hands with one of the girls.

Kennedy opened his airport arrival statement Sunday night with brief greetings in Japanese but stayed away from the language during his rounds today.

Mrs. Kennedy visited a Catholic English-language school and had a reunion with Mother Anne Stoeple, the president of the academy, who taught her at the Convent of the Sacred Heart in New York City. She also visited a crippled children's home.

WASHINGTON — It's strange that a difference just a few months make. The country was being told, for instance, in January 1961, that Robert F. Kennedy was being appointed attorney general, not just because he was the President's brother but because he was skilled in matters of law and the art of investigation. It was denied that any favoritism for a relative or nepotism was involved.

But today the 36-year-old attorney general has become a "good-will" ambassador for a President of the United States who just happens to be his brother. There certainly is no need for the attorney general to take a 28-day journey around the world just to get information on how better to run the Department of Justice. He will learn little abroad that will enable him to deal with antitrust suits.

The fact that Robert Kennedy referred to familiarly as a rule in Washington as "Bobby"—will in a sense represent his brother and will be given the equivalent of a royal welcome everywhere may be a satisfying errand or vacation for him, but it will be obvious that it is his relationship to the President and not his status as a mere cabinet officer which warrants attention. His itinerary includes Tokyo, Hong Kong, Jakarta in Indonesia, Bangkok in Thailand, Rome, Berlin, Bonn, The Hague, Paris, and possibly London.

Wherever he meets with the top men in foreign governments, he will be looked upon as a spokesman for the President of the United States. The prime ministers in turn will hope that what they say to him will be transmitted to the White House. It's a strange way to conduct the di-

Two Whales Sighted
Off Florida Coast

MARINELAND, Fla. (AP) — Two large black whales were sighted just outside the breakers in the Atlantic Ocean off Marineland.

F. G. Wood Jr., curator of Marine Studios, identified them as North Atlantic Right whales—so named because oldtime whalers considered them the right kind for whale oil.

He said the whales normally migrate south in the winter but rarely come close to shore.

One of those sighted was about 50 to 60 feet long and the other about 25 feet.

plomacy of the United States, which supposedly relies on the Secretary of State and the American ambassadors abroad to carry on a system of communication on foreign policy.

No Attention
If he were not the President's brother, the attorney general's trip wouldn't attract much attention abroad. He made a similar trip to Asia in 1956 accompanying Justice Douglas of the Supreme Court. His comments then about his acuteness of observation.

For he is, indeed, an alert-minded young man about whom Washingtonians are often found quipping nowadays that he hopes to succeed JFK in 1968, and then Ted Kennedy will come along as the third of the "dynasty" in 1977.

This is admittedly a long time ahead to speculate, but Bobby Kennedy, likeable, ambitious, and a good politician, certainly realizes that just to make his mark as attorney general is not enough and that, if he is to train himself to be a presidential candidate later on, he must learn something about the world and engage in wider fields of publicity than the Department of Justice offers.

In fact, there are enthusiasts who claim Bobby Kennedy would be more decisive than his brother and perhaps an even better administrator — though, of course, this, too, is perhaps a premature bit of speculation.

Bobby Kennedy was reported to have received a few weeks ago an informal bid to visit the Soviet Union. The report was subsequently denied in Moscow. May be the Kremlin had second thoughts after going back to the files and rereading the interview published on Oct. 21, 1955, in "U.S. News & World Report," just after Bobby Kennedy returned from a visit to the Soviet Union. He said then:

"I've had enough of it. . . we are dealing with a government to whom God and the family or the individual means nothing, and whose practice it has been in the past to make promises and treaties to serve their purpose and to break them when it has been to their advantage. It can only be suicidal for us . . . on the basis of smiles to strengthen Russia and weaken ourselves. . . ."

Basic Evils
"Communism retains its basic evils whether it is the Khrushchev type or the more oppressive Stalin style."

Declaring that the Russians do not really permit freedom of travel and will not let visitors see all of their country or "things that are touchy," he mentioned some slave labor camps that the Russians wouldn't allow him to see. He spoke also of their "segregated" system of schools. When he was asked what this meant, he said:

"The explanation the officials gave us is that people like their own school. . . ."

"In every city that we visited in Central Asia the schools were segregated—the Russian school children in one school, the local children in another."

"Is there a difference in color," he was asked, "between the Russians and the natives?"

"Oh, yes," he replied. "They are completely different."

"I mean in color."

"Oh, yes, the Russian are European, white. The natives are Mongolian—a dark race."

So maybe if Bobby Kennedy does visit Russia on this or a subsequent trip, he can tell the Russian people about the "Freedom Rides" in America and what all this can accomplish, though it's conceivable the State Department might advise him that this is a "touchy" subject on both sides (Copyright, 1962)

Thurmond Has
Eyes on Presidency
Defeated Dixiecrat Candidate
Now Spokesman for Far Right

BY WILLIAM MCGAFFIN

Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON — A slender, balding man of medium height, who speaks with the thick drawl of his native South Carolina, set a Yankee audience on fire here a few days ago.

Strom Thurmond's chief claims to fame used to be that he ran for president on the Dixiecrat ticket in 1948 and was one of the most outspoken segregationists in the U.S. Senate.

Now, however, the 50-year-old Democratic senator from South Carolina, is gaining a reputation in another field. He has become one of the leading spokesmen of the burgeoning right-wing movement.

He contends that military men who want to speak out on the dangers of communism are being muzzled by the Defense and State departments. He prodded the Senate until it agreed to the hearings, now being conducted into his charges.

With the start of the hearings he has a new forum—and a new charge. The hearings, he told a luncheon meeting of the American coalition of patriotic societies here, will show "not so much the caprice or communist leaning of any Defense or State department censors" but "some of the defeat-ist, no-win policies formulated by policy planners and leaders who have determined that we do not want to win the cold war."

Malcolm Charles

State Department planners, he alleged, "said President Truman on the idea that we should not win (in Korea), and they have successfully peddled this defeatist idea in almost every serious conflict which has followed between the Free World and Communism."

He was applauded 30 times during the course of his address and received a standing ovation at its conclusion.

What is Thurmond up to? This is a question which congressmen and correspondents frequently ask each other these days.

The consensus appears to be that he still has national ambitions — but that he also believes the things he says.

"He's really a very sincere guy," commented one of his fellow senators. "I think you can understand why he makes some of the statements he does if you will remember that he represents an unusual combination. He is one of the most conservative members of the Senate. He is also a major general in the army reserve."

Others who know him well have observed that he is a "super-patriot" and has no sense of humor. "You can't kid him about anything."

Called Fanatic
While crediting him with sincerity, some persons also describe him as a "fanatic."

Without question, the Walker case was one of the major motivations that led to Thurmond's insistent demand for Senate hearings into the alleged "muzzling of the military." This was an instance of Thurmond, the major general, rushing to the defense of a fellow general.

When Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker decided to resign from the army he issued his statement of resignation through Thurmond's office. The senator, however, has cooled off fast on Walker in recent weeks. He has become embarrassed, apparently, by some of the things Walker has said.

Some of the veteran political writers here are convinced that Thurmond is thinking of both 1962 and 1964 as he repeats his slogans these days.

They believe that he hopes to elect more conservatives to Congress this fall by planting the idea in the public mind that the government in Washington has been "soft on communism." And in 1964, if things were right, he might try to replay 1948, they suggest, with the hope that he could do better with the help of right-wing conservatives in the North.

Third Party

Thurmond has indicated that he might join a conservative third party should one be formed, depending upon "how conservative it goes and what the situation is." He proposed the formation of a new conservative third party in a speech last December. One is needed, he declared, because both major parties have already gone too far down the road toward centralized government, welfare statism and socialism.

Most people are not aware that Thurmond has not always been this conservative. In fact, he was considered a liberal during the first two years of his four year term as governor of South Carolina (1947-51).

He moved over to the far right, it has been explained, partly for the chance to run for President in 1948, partly to win election to the Senate a few years later from the conservative bloc of voters who had gained great strength in South Carolina. He has served in the Senate since 1954.

The first time he ran in the Democratic senatorial primary of 1950, he lost to Sen. Olin Johnston.

Looks Foolish

One factor that apparently contributed to his defeat was that the voters felt he had made himself look foolish by standing on his head for a national magazine photographer. He had done this in 1947, ostensibly to demonstrate his vigor, in the first year of his governorship when at the age of 45 he married his secretary, a younger woman. "Stand on your head for us, Strom," the hecklers used to call out during the 1950 campaign.

The beautiful Mrs. Jean Thurmond died in 1960, after 13 years of marriage. Thurmond has led a lonely life since then. Last year, though, he was seen bicycling occasionally around Washington with Sen. Maurice Neuberger (D-Ore.). It seemed like an odd combination since Mrs. Neuberger's political faith, like that of her late husband, Richard, is as liberal as Thurmond's is conservative.

Questions Arise Over Salinger's Visit to Russia

Communications
Between U. S., Reds
Will be Explored

By PETER LISAGOR
Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON — Simple nagging questions hang over the acceptance by White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger of an invitation to visit Russia this spring.

If the Russians are interested in improving the dialogue between the United States and the Soviet Union, why don't they simply end their jamming of the Voice of America broadcasts in the Russian language?

Another question is being asked of Salinger's extraordinary excursion into a realm hitherto reserved for trained diplomats. Is he qualified even on an informal basis to deal with the Russians who demand more quid pro quo than most other people?

Pheasant Luncheon

The invitation to Salinger was tendered by Mr. Adzhubey, Premier Nikita Khrushchev's son-in-law and editor of the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia, at a pheasant and cello luncheon President and Mrs. Kennedy gave for the Russian visitor and his wife Tuesday.

It was Salinger, who described the purpose of his Soviet visit as part of an effort to improve the flow of communications between the United States and Russia.

Salinger, of course, received the permission of the President who apparently sees some virtue in having his press secretary go to Russia to talk to Soviet newsmen and government officials about a free flow of information.

Mr. Kennedy spent about three hours at lunch and in informal conversations with Adzhubey in a wide-ranging discussion that went beyond mere communications and that whittled the interest of the whole free world.

Lobby Jammed

The White House lobby was jammed with British, French, Italian, German and Japanese correspondents who waited throughout a long afternoon as though the Kennedy-Adzhubey conversations were at least of sub-remotely importance.

They got little but crumbs at the end of their vigil. But they were not inclined to dismiss the event as merely a candid chat.

They were more inclined to interpret the Adzhubey visit in cold war but not in terms of searching for signs of a thaw or the beginning of a possible accommodation between Washington and Moscow.

This has long been one of the hard-boiled eyes of a fairly social affair involving a Soviet citizen official. The Communists usually have a specific purpose when they come to call, especially on presidents and especially when they are relatives of Khrushchev.

It also has been the experience of veteran diplomats that the Soviets are rarely impressed with either neighborliness or conviviality except as these qualities enable them to make the right contacts in pursuit of their purposes.

Amiable Hard Head

Salinger is regarded here as an amiable, alert, reasonably hard-headed agent of his boss and is no doubt entertaining Adzhubey and talking with other Soviet officials as he did to the foreign ministry press chief Mikhail Khramov in Paris over the weekend—with the full knowledge and consent of the President.

The district about Salinger's visits basically from the feeling that he lacks experience in dealing with the Soviets. More than that, however, is the view among some diplomats that the off-ends that the Russians are serious about doing business, they have chosen to do it on high levels.

What, in short, is good many officials and observers are asking here is: Can Salinger accomplish what a trained diplomat such as Ambassador Ellsworth Thompson in Moscow cannot?

At the same time, however, administration spokesmen maintain that meeting with Adzhubey might produce some clues as to what is going on behind the Iron Curtain and possibly what the Kremlin might be willing to do to ease present tensions.

To many this hardly explains the curious role a White House press secretary is being permitted to play as a virtual substitute for those long experienced and trained in dealing with the Russians.

Committee Urges Parking Education

Merchants Must Have Their Employees Help, Group Says

A new chamber of commerce committee decided this morning to urge downtown merchants to back an educational program on Appleton's parking system.

The parking education committee will ask the merchants to use maps distributed by the chamber to show customers the best place to park. The request will be in a letter to the merchants and in a report at the next meeting of the Downtown Retail Association.

The chamber Saturday began distribution of 30,000 maps showing the location of 4,430 public and private parking spaces in the downtown area. The map includes the time limit and price for each space and has been run as a newspaper advertisement. Future advertisements are planned.

The parking education committee wants all employees of downtown stores to show the locations of city lots and the time limits on them to customers and to promote Appleton's parking.

"Biggest Problem" "The biggest problem," said Douglas Ogilvie, 12th Ward alderman and a committee member, "is to get shoppers who want to do lengthy parking to use lots with long time limits." The committee also felt the lack of use of parking lot 7, on Lawrence Street near the School of Vocational and Adult Education, is a problem.

Members thought newspaper publicity, signs, advertising and police department informational activities would help solve these problems.

A member of the committee will visit large employers in the downtown area and urge them to have their employees park in lots with long time limits. Receptionists in downtown offices also will be asked to show clientele on the map the best place to park.

Village Plans New Values

Combined Locks May Hire Neenah Company for Study

COMBINED LOCKS—A study of a complete reassessment for the village will be considered at a meeting of the village board at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the village hall. A representative of a Neenah appraisal firm will submit a proposal for reassessment work. The village has one of the highest tax rates in the area, $60 per $1,000 assessed valuation, but property is assessed at about 25 to 30 percent of true value, according to Don Williams, village president.

Appropriated $7,000

The board appropriated $7,000 in the 1962 budget for reappraisal and expects the work to be completed this summer. This will be the first appraisal by a professional firm. Purpose of the check, according to Williams, is to bring assessments for various property owners more into line. The tax rate for 1963 will doubtless be lower than this year's rate, stated the president, although property owners will probably be paying as much if not more in taxes after the reassessment.

Oshkosh Man to Serve 90 Days for Concealing Gun, Traffic Violation

OSHKOSH — Hubert Lawson, 22, 134A W. Eighth Ave., Oshkosh, was sentenced in County Court this morning to consecutive county jail terms of 60 and 30 days for driving after revocation of his drivers license and carrying a concealed weapon. He also was fined $100 and costs on the license revocation charge. Lawson was arrested in a downtown tavern Thursday night after another tavern patron called police and reported Lawson had a loaded revolver.

He told Oshkosh police the revolver was a Christmas present from his wife and he did not know why he had it with him in the tavern. It was his second conviction for driving after revocation of his driver's license.

Target Practice Ends in Injury

NEENAH — Richard Zenefski, 21, Shore Acres, Menasha, was admitted to Theda Clark Memorial Hospital at 2:20 p.m. Sunday after he accidentally shot himself in the right thigh.

According to a report on file with Neenah police, Zenefski was practicing target shooting with a .38-calibre revolver on fire lane 9 in Calumet County.

When the youth returned the gun to its holster, the hammer caught and dropped on the cartridge under R, firing it into his right thigh. The bullet lodged just under his skin.

Fire Call

NEENAH — The fire department was called to the Chester W. Bland residence, 1000 S. Reed St., at 8:30 p.m. Sunday after the insulation on an electric clothes dryer started to burn. Minor damage was reported.

Municipalities Moving Toward Picked Officials

League Study Shows More Communities Are Shortening Ballot

MADISON — Municipalities of Wisconsin are increasingly moving to shorten local election ballots by making more of their administrative officers appointive rather than elective.

The trend is disclosed in a survey of officer selection practices of Wisconsin cities and villages published here by the League of Wisconsin Municipalities.

The League apparently backs such policies, for it has prepared and circulated model ordinances to put appointive selection rules into effect for municipalities.

In some cases appointment by the mayor of clerks, treasurers and assessors, among other officers, has been provided, without or with approval of the council or village board. In other cases provision has been made for direct appointment by the council or village board.

Indefinite Tenure

The League said there is also a noticeable trend toward providing indefinite tenure for local administrative officials, rather than selecting them for a fixed term of years.

Academic critics of the political system have for many years been complaining about the long ballot in American elections, holding that it is a deterrent to voting in some instances, and an element of confusion for other citizens.

The League illustrated with the selection practices of 43 Wisconsin municipalities of more than 10,000 population, and found that 26 of them appoint their clerks, while 17 provide for their election, that 31 of them appoint assessors, against 12 who are elected, that 21 treasurers are appointive and 22 elective, and that 28 municipal attorneys get their jobs through appointment to 15 by election.

In Appleton and Kaukauna, the city clerk, treasurer, assessor and attorney are all elected. The first three are elected in Menasha, but the city attorney is appointed annually by the council.

In Neenah the city clerk, treasurer and assessor are appointed by the council and have tenure. The city attorney is appointed annually by the council.

All four offices in Oshkosh are filled by appointment by the city manager, and the officials have tenure.

Area Pupils Chairmen For OSC Banquet

Several area students are chairmen for the annual Associated Women Students' Father-Daughter Banquet at Oshkosh State College, to be held Saturday. Four to five hundred persons are expected to attend.

Joan Keener, junior from Amherst, is co-chairman for the event. Other committee heads include Gina Kuranowicz, freshman from Appleton; decorations committee; Mary Laker, sophomore from Appleton; tickets committee; Karen Wendt, junior from Pine River; invitations committee.

Charles W. O'Konski of WFRV-TV, Green Bay, shows his wife, Mary, the awards he won at the Wisconsin Press Photographers Association convention in Milwaukee this weekend. He was named TV photographer of the year, and received a first place award for spot news, first and second place awards for features and honorable mention for general news. O'Konski has been with WFRV-TV since May, 1961. He was news director of WHBY in Appleton for two years.

The Proposed Site for a Walter Avenue supermarket would require a rezoning for the area outlined above. The city planning commission has opposed the rezoning and the construction of the market in the area, claiming it would create a bottleneck to Walter Avenue traffic. The commission has suggested the market be constructed on Newberry Street instead. The rezoning of the area between Harriet and Gunn streets comes up for common council approval Wednesday.

Second Opening Set For Courthouse Bids In Calumet County

Committee Hopes Prices Will be Below Last $260,000 Estimates

CHILTON—The Public Grounds Committee of the Calumet County Board will open bids Feb. 27 on revised specifications for a courthouse annex.

This will be the second time the committee has received bids on the proposed structure. The first time, in early December, the low bids totaled more than $260,000. All bids were rejected. The county supervisors had hoped to have the addition built for no more than $225,000. The December bids and the furnishings not included in their total would have pushed total cost of the project to near $300,000.

No Expansion

At its January meeting, the board approved revised specifications but also called for study of a proposal to purchase the former St. Martin Lutheran Church building on Grand Street instead of building the addition. The major specification changes were in the base and structural requirements. The initial plans called for a one-story building capable of someday supporting a second floor. The new plans call for one-story specifications with no provisions for future second-story expansion.

The Public Grounds Committee inspected the vacated church building and will submit its recommendations and findings to the board in February. Joe Depies, New Holstein supervisor, who heads the committee, said, the building is apparently not well suited for what the county would use it for — housing its extension and agricultural services.

Approval Doubtful

Depies said he doubted if Industrial Commission approval could be obtained to remodel the church for use as a public office building. It also lacks parking facilities and is located in the heart of a residential neighborhood.

The committee has also authorized the purchase of an adding machine for the clerk of courts office and a desk chair for the welfare department.

Stores Crowded Saturday; Sunday Closing Favored

Markets Open Sundays Have No Comment on Shopper Load

Fox Cities food market operators reported more customers and many compliments on the day before they ended Sunday operations.

"I don't think anything I've done as long as I've been in business," has got as many compliments," said Lloyd J. Berken, owner of the Appleton Piggly Wiggly Store. An informal association of supermarket managers and owners agreed Jan. 28 to close on Sundays, beginning yesterday. A number of other stores joined them last week. Berken, spokesman for the group, said rising costs of Sunday operations were the major factor in the closing.

Shoppers apparently stocked up for the weekend Friday and Saturday, with store operators reporting business "much heavier" than usual on Saturday. Saturday had previously been a slow day.

Managers of stores which are still open on Sunday had no comment on whether their business had increased noticeably yesterday.

Operators of stores which were closed Sunday said they had received few complaints, and many customers had praised the decision.

Firm Reaches 200 Safe Working Days

MENASHA — Wisconsin Container Corp. Friday rewarded its employees' safety efforts by distributing merchandise awards for 200 safe working days, reached by all three teams of the work force. Next goal is 350 safe working days, for which merchandise of higher value will be awarded. Last milestone was the 100-day mark, reached Sept. 18.

The company began its accident prevention contest in May, to put added incentive in the safety program by sustaining and focusing attention on accident prevention.

Competition by teams also is a constant reminder that cooperation and teamwork are important in plant safety, since a worker can be injured by a fellow employee's carelessness as well as by his own, company officials believe.

Wisconsin Container Corp. closed 1961 as its most successful year in accident prevention, with only two lost time accidents. The safety record has shown constant improvement since 1957, when the safety program at the plant was begun, the company says.

Safety committee members are Dwight Wildhagen and Margaret Heinz, representing the employees, and Robert Helms and Walter Sellnow, for the company.

Hugo Mattson, 40, 1812 N. Owassa St., is being held in Outagamie County jail pending payment of a $25 fine for drunkenness. Mattson was arrested at 8:15 p.m. Friday on N. Appleton Street after he created a disturbance and was asked to leave a restaurant.

Cuban Trade Just About Thing of Past

WASHINGTON — About this time every winter, crates of bright red vine-ripened "beefsteak" tomatoes from sunny Cuba used to start arriving in Florida and New York ports.

Not this year. Fidel Castro's tomatoes got too "red" for the American dinner table.

Even though it's perfectly legal to bring Cuban fruits and vegetables into the United States, the Agriculture Department says little or none had come in this year.

Both policies and transportation are to blame.

Some of the wholesalers who bought Cuban produce last winter had to mask the sides of their trucks, so violent was the opposition to "doing business with Castro."

The Havana-to-Miami car ferry that carried most of the produce has ceased running. So has the shipping line that made twice a week runs from Cuba to New York.

About the only Cuban product outside of refugees, that was still reaching the United States in quantity was tobacco. Tobacco sales earned the Castro regime about $27,000,000 in 1961, the Department of Commerce estimates.

Sales of foodstuffs, principally last winter's tomatoes and cucumbers and last summer's pineapples — brought Cuba's dollar earnings for the year to about $15,000,000. Some medical supplies also were involved.

This is a far cry from the half billion dollars a year Cuba used to earn in the U.S. market before we cut off her sugar sales in October, 1960.

U. S. Acts to Keep Grain Stored on Farms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department acted today to keep much of the nation's surplus grains stored on farms where it was grown — some for another year and some for two more years.

It did this by announcing that price support loans on such grains — which may exceed a billion bushels by spring — will be extended. Farmers will get storage payments of about 13 cents a bushel a year for storing this grain on their farms.

By extending loans, the department delay the time when it takes over the grain as payment.

F. Davis, president; and James E. Asmuth, treasurer and general manager of Wisconsin Tissue Mills, Menasha, president. The group is a cooperative, non-profit pool car shipping association of 35 Wisconsin paper firms.

Present at Hearing

Guardsmen Endorse Neenah Slough Improvement Project

NEENAH — Endorsement of local attempts to secure improvement of the Neenah slough, once known as Stoney River, arrived today from members of Co. E, 1st Battle Group, 127th Infantry of the 32nd Division at Fort Lewis, Wash.

The public hearing on the Fox and Wolf River waterways, which will include presentation of the Neenah slough petitions and testimony, is scheduled for 10 a.m. Tuesday at Roosevelt Junior High School in Appleton. Neenah petitioners will be represented at that meeting and have urged anyone interested in the project to attend.

Staff Sgt. Richard Koerner, Neenah resident now serving with the Guard at Washington sent a letter of comments on the slough project to Fritz Reichel, 618 Knight Ave., local chairman of the project. It was signed by more than 35 Twin City residents even though the men have been on 80 hours of intensified training for two weeks and many had gone to town for the weekend.

Recalls Childhood

Koerner recalled fishing in the slough in his childhood, sailing an iceboat with room to maneuver between the Adams Street and Winnebago Avenue bridges and skating to the end of the slough, out past the airport.

He also recalled the days when space at the favorite fishing holes was at a premium, when one could sit on a box and catch a pile full of perch and an occasional walleye with pickering and northern pike. He maintained that dumping rubbish in the slough contaminated the fish and spoiled fishing.

"There's nothing this country needs more than to curb juvenile delinquency and the best way is to start young boys and girls to fish, take part in sports and improve the fishing in the lower lake which at one time was the best perch lake in the state."

"The community is built up all around the south and west of Neenah and that means hundreds of youngsters growing up in this slough and fighting for a parking spot."

"Maybe we'll get some good fishing then."

"That would increase the value of the property all around the area."

"It's about time they cleaned that stinkhole up. I'm all in favor of it. I'll back it 100 percent."

Youth's Physical Fitness Plan Needs Teacher, Parent Backing

BY LESLIE J. NASON, ED.D.
Professor of Education, University of Southern California

To attain the physical fitness goal set for youth by President Kennedy, it's going to be necessary for parents and teachers as well as young people to take action.

You don't have to be a tower of strength to win success in modern society but health certainly is an advantage. And health depends to a considerable extent, of course, on overall fitness.

Physical fitness can't be attained by passing a law. We already have compulsory physical education classes, but our children are still too soft. Nor is it easy to achieve in the modern city where there are few trees to climb, or streams and trails to follow.

So other ways must be sought. Here are some guiding principles discovered by physical therapists and physical education teachers.

A 4-Point Program

1. Strength is developed by working against resistance. Repetition alone will not necessarily develop muscles — otherwise a typist's hands would be as large as a truckman's. But running, hard doing standard exercises until you are tired or pushing or pulling objects that don't push or pull easily will make a difference.

2. Coordination is achieved by striving consciously for it during a repeated activity. To gain coordination in swimming, diving, golf or throwing a ball you must concentrate on the proper form.

3. Speed and endurance will be developed more easily after muscles have been established and trained.

4. For best results each child must have confidence in his ability to improve and be interested in his own physical development.

age him effectively, the problem will be solved.

But let me sound one cautionary note. Parents and teachers should watch closely for such things as defective vision or a serious lack of muscular coordination. In such cases you may need to consult an optician or physical therapist. Also, an overweight child has a serious problem to overcome.

Some examples of successful programs:

A teacher I know tested her incoming first graders on their ability to climb the school jungle gym and stand on it, to go around the rings and across the ladder. She found that about one third of her pupils were unable to do these three things successfully. They lacked the strength or the coordination, or were just afraid to try. Many of these were the same children left out of games on the playground.

To correct the situation the teacher had each child try to climb the jungle gym. She also had them practice other things like catching and batting balls.

By the end of the school year every child could do the exercises and every child was chosen for the games. There was not a single isolated one left in the group.

A high school instructor in Whittier, Calif., put each student in a class of 50 to work on his own problem of acquiring strength and coordination. Each student used various equipment including weights designed to develop strength through overcoming resistance.

Each student paced his activity according to his own strength.

Each kept a record of his own progress. The enthusiasm of the students and the gains in strength and coordination in comparison to groups given the usual physical education course left no doubt as to the value of this individualized approach.

Purchasing Unit Votes to Buy New Fire Hose

KAUKAUNA — The purchasing committee voted to recommend the purchase of 1,200 feet of fire hose from the Egan Supply Co. at a bid price of $1,388.

The matter will be presented to the council Tuesday. Although the bid was second low, committee members and the fire chief favored this bidder as a sample of the type of hose the city has had success with in past years.

Low bidder, Seco Manufacturing Co., Milwaukee, submitted a bid for $1,375.19, but the committee and fire chief had never heard of the type of hose the concern proposed furnishing.

Germans Plan Film On Nazi Terrorism

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — A West German film team plans to make a movie in Communist Czechoslovakia in the spring about the Nazi terror in Prague during World War II. The movie will be based on a novel by Israeli author M. Y. Ven-Gavriel.

Each kept a record of his own progress. The enthusiasm of the students and the gains in strength and coordination in comparison to groups given the usual physical education course left no doubt as to the value of this individualized approach. Although the problem of physical fitness is individual and maintained when several individuals work on physical fitness simultaneously. Schools can be ideal for that.

Union Firmness Cracked at Allis-Chalmers

West Allis Home
Local 248 Sets Own
Strike Deadline

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Union solidarity in United Auto Workers contract negotiations with the Allis-Chalmers Mfg. Co. was cracked Sunday when Local 248 at the home plant in West Allis set its own strike deadline — March 15.

The UAW's Allis-Chalmers Council, comprised of representatives of each local at the eight A-C plants in the nation, announced earlier a strike deadline of Feb. 20.

Charles M. Schultz, president of Local 248, announced the new deadline and told 3,000 members at a meeting Sunday night. "And if we are in an area of settlement, your committee will take a darn close look at the March 15 deadline, too. We meant it when we told you that we would cautiously weigh all factors before taking you on strike."

Negotiating Contract
The union and the agricultural heavy machinery firm have been negotiating a contract to replace the one that expired Nov. 1, but had been continued by mutual agreement. Local 248 represents about two-thirds of the firm's 10,000 employees.

(Valley Iron Works, Appleton, is a subsidiary of Allis Chalmers Mfg. Co., but the plant is not involved in the current labor negotiations.)

Schultz said the council originally sought a Feb. 4 deadline but was persuaded by Local 248 to extend it. He also said he and the local's bargaining committee had opposed since last summer "central negotiations."

"Some of the small locals want everything at the central table," Schultz said. "It's an understandable selfish desire. They are too weak to negotiate for themselves... Whenever 248 asked them (the council) for support, we were voted down and we have 66 per cent of the members. We think 66 per cent is a majority."

Schultz also said, "We have many, many problems which are peculiar to the West Allis operation that must be settled on the local level."

Seven Killed In Plane Crash

State Man Dies on Air Force C47 Goes
Down Near Bases

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—A C47 transport plane crashed and burned Sunday, killing seven Air Force men.

An Air Force board of inquiry today begins the task of examining the charred remains of the plane at the Greensboro-Fitch Airport in search of clues to the cause of the crash.

The board was flown here from Pope Air Force Base near Fayetteville, N.C., only hours after the plane smashed into the turf 100 feet from the airport.

There were no survivors. Pope AFB identified the dead as:

Dead Listed
Capt. R. J. Rice, 27, the pilot, Fort Walton Beach, Fla.
Capt. David L. Murphy, 30, co-pilot, Bloomfield, Neb.
Capt. Thomas D. Carter, 27, navigator, Helena, Ark.
Sgt. Bernard P. Terrien, 32, engineer, Gillett, Wis.
Lt. D. J. Hughes, 28, a passenger, Fort Walton Beach, Fla.
Capt. Robert H. Sanford, 34, a passenger, Greensboro, N.C.
Sgt. Preston Presley, age unavailable, service address APO 126, en route on emergency leave to Alcoa, Tenn.

The Air Force said the plane was on a routine flight. The C47, a military version of the DC3, left its home base, Hurlburt Field in Florida, last Friday.

It left McGuire Air Force Base, N.J., Sunday, stopped at Philadelphia and flew to Greensboro. The Federal Aviation Flight Service station at Knoxville, Tenn., said the plane was en route to Knoxville.

At Greensboro, the plane paused briefly, stopping at one of the two engines. Witnesses said the pilot took off down the 6,000-foot runway and was some 100 feet off the ground when an engine stalled.

The plane cartwheeled, its right wing scratched the runway, and the C47 burst into flames.

Industry Topics Talks Feb. 16

First of Statewide Conferences Set in Manitowoc City Hall

The second meeting in a statewide series of conferences to launch a new program of industrial expansion for Wisconsin will be held in Manitowoc, Feb. 16.

David Carley, director of the Wisconsin Department of Resource Development, set the meeting today.

A task force of specialists from business and state government will tell how the new state tax law can be used to promote local industrial development. Other speakers will describe current economic trends in eastern Wisconsin, and provide information on what local groups can do to benefit from the anticipated growth.

Details of the department's national advertising program will be disclosed.

Residents of Manitowoc, Outagamie, Brown, Kewaunee, Door, Winnebago, Calumet, Fond du Lac, and Sheboygan counties are invited to attend the Manitowoc conference, which will be held at the council room of the city hall, 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

The session will be short—only three hours—and as much information will be imparted as possible during this period. All speeches will be short. Time will be set aside for questions and suggestions from the audience.

Carley said he was asking for the help of business, labor, and civic organizations in promoting the state's economic development.

"There have been hard feelings in the past between various segments," he said. "But now we have new legislation, and while it is a compromise, it represents a big step toward solving long-standing problems, and it is up to all of us to work together for the common good."

Spring Gets Replaced by Wintry Blasts

Spring was short-lived in the Fox Cities. Old Man Winter has returned with a new series of icy blasts.

Temperatures are expected to continue falling today to about a low of 5 to 10 below tonight.

A pressure cell along the west coast is blocking any chance of snow or nasty weather for the next 48 hours, the weatherman says. Because of the high, cold air will continue to slip down from the north.

High temperature in the Fox Cities Sunday was 39.

President of Ecuador Praises Graham Crusade

QUITO, Ecuador (AP)—Billy Graham's crusade in this predominantly Roman Catholic country has won high praise for "benefiting all—Catholic, Protestants and non-Christians."

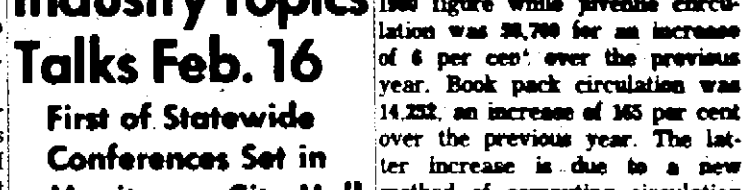

The praise for the American evangelist came from former President Gale Plaza Lasso, who told newsmen Sunday, "Dr. Graham is considered a spiritual leader who can explain to the people in words they can understand their fears, their hopes and the problems of the world."

The American evangelist, a Baptist, has been drawing big crowds to his meetings, including a large number of Indians. A Protestant spokesman said the 6,000 who nearly packed the city coliseum Saturday night were nearly three times the number of Protestants living in Quito.

Hundreds came forward in response to his appeal to make a decision for Christ.

Fiberglass Pole May Have Helped Uelses

'You Have to Go With Progress,' Says Vaulting Champ

BOSTON (AP)—An unconfirmed rumor has it that the United States will ask Marine John Uelses to lay aside his pole vaulting for a while and volunteer to go into orbit.

The 24-year-old German-born Uelses could almost make it with-out a rocket.

Lance Corporal Uelses, stationed at Quantico, Va., uses a pole instead of rocket fuel. And it doesn't look as if there's any ceiling on his astounding pole vaulting.

Uelses straightened out the record book Saturday night in the Boston A.A. track meet. The night before he had become the first man in history to clear 16 feet, vaulting 16 3/4 in the Milrose Games at New York.

But a shadow was cast on the remarkable mark in the flurry of post-vault excitement, the bar was knocked down before the height could be remeasured.

So Uelses went out and vaulted 16 feet, 3/4 inches in Boston on his first try at the height.

Extra Lift

"I almost stepped on the runway, just before I got to the take-off pit," Uelses confided afterward. "I felt something in my right leg at just about my check mark. But I went ahead anyway. I think breaking my stride gave me a little extra lift."

However, though Uelses now has history's only two 16-foot vaults, the mark is not recognized as a world record. The International Amateur Athletic Federation does not consider indoor records. The pending outdoor world vault standard is 15-10 1/2, set by George Davies last year and equaled by the darkly handsome Uelses only nine days ago in Washington.

"He'll do 17 feet some day," said his coach, Aubrey Dooley, who is a pretty fair vaulter himself, doing 15-5 while at Oklahoma State.

What has been responsible for turning Uelses, born in Berlin, into a champion after being only a mediocre vaulter a year ago?

Uelses himself doesn't have the answer. But he acknowledges that it's been just one year that he's been using a fiberglass pole.

"I don't want to take anything away from John," says veteran trainer Jack Semple. "He's a wonderful athlete. But the fiberglass pole makes its appearance and all of a sudden there's a flock of 15-foot pole vaulters around."

"It's like a whip. I used to train (Cornelius) Warmerdam when he used a bamboo pole. I wouldn't be surprised if he could have done 17 feet with one of these new poles."

Retired pole vaulter Don (Tartan) Bragg is another disbeliever. "Vaulting," he says, "used to be 60 to 70 per cent the athlete and 30 to 40 per cent the pole. Now it has been completely reversed. The fiberglass pole should be declared illegal."

"Bragg has his opinion and I have mine," Uelses said after clearing 16-feet for the second time. "You have to go along with progress. After all, the metal pole was an improvement over bamboo."

Uelses gets his next chance at the once "impossible" barrier Friday night in the Philadelphia Inquirer meet.

Other Saturday night winners included John Reilly of Georgetown in the mile (4:09.7), Tom O'Riordan of Utah State and Ireland in the two-mile (8:53.5), Bill Crothers of the University of Toronto in the 1,000 (2:06.6) and Frank Budd of Villanova in the 50-yard dash (5.3).

boards, but were unable to solve the Xavier pressing defense. Mike Flanagan's corner shot with 4:50 left in the opening period put the Hawks ahead to stay. St. John pulled to within two points at 13-11 with 2:01 remaining, but were never closer.

Xavier scored the first eight points of the unusual second quarter, to build a 27-14 lead. Verday's foul-filled game with the Nats, The 50 points upped Will's total for 60 games to 2,990. A total of 71 fouls were called with the Warriors making 39 of 56 free throws and the Nats 40 of 54. Six players, three on each team, fouled out.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was a right nice weekend for the home boys in the National Basketball Association. Four games were played Saturday and the same number Sunday afternoon with the home clubs winning six.

The St. Louis Hawks, slipping back in their belated attempt to gain the playoffs in the Western Division, were the only home losers. They dropped a 127-124 decision to the Los Angeles Lakers Saturday before losing to the Pistons at Detroit 121-113 Sunday.

The two defeats, plus the Pistons, 116-109 conquest of the Chicago Packers at St. Louis Saturday dropped the Hawks five games back of third-place Detroit.

Philadelphia, winner of 10 of its last 12 games, split a pair with Syracuse, losing 134-112 on the Nats' court Saturday and winning 128-117 at home Sunday. Despite their fast pace, the Warriors remained 7 1/2 games back of Boston's Eastern Division leading Celtics, who downed New York 130-114 in a home game Sunday.

The Knicks, however, won at home Saturday, beating the Cincinnati Royals 121-110. The Packers surprised the Lakers Sunday, winning 115-105 at Chicago. The weekend results left the Lakers 10 games in front of runner-up Cincinnati in the Western Division.

Scoring Spree

Frank Ramsey went on a scoring spree late in the third period to lead the Celtics to their victory over New York. Boston was trailing 74-73 when Ramsey came off the bench midway of the period. In the next six minutes he scored 15 points as the Celtics opened up a 102-84 margin. He led the well-distributed Boston scoring with 24 points but was topped by two Knicks—Willie Naulls with 29 and A. Butler with 28.

Wilt Chamberlain hit the half-century mark for Philadelphia for the 39th time this season in Sunday's foul-filled game with the Nats. The 50 points upped Will's total for 60 games to 2,990. A total of 71 fouls were called with the Warriors making 39 of 56 free throws and the Nats 40 of 54. Six players, three on each team, fouled out.

CHICAGO (AP)—The door is open for the Negro athlete at the University of Maryland, the Washington Post said Sunday.

It said that beginning next fall Negro athletes who qualify for the university will be given the same consideration for scholarship and as any other prospective athletes.

The decision was made quietly at a recent board of regents meeting, the Post said.

Maryland, founded in 1820, never has had a Negro athlete.

Appleton 'Y' Tankmen Lose To Two Rivers

Two Rivers High School defeated the Appleton YMCA swimmers, 67-28, in a dual meet over the weekend.

Appleton's Bill Hughes took first place in both the 400-yard freestyle and 100-yard butterfly events to remain undefeated in that specialty thus far this season. He was timed in 5:07.1 in the freestyle and 1:14 in the butterfly.

Other Appleton winners were Steve Bates and Greg Baldwin. Bates won the 160-yard individual medley and Baldwin also kept his unbeaten record intact by capturing the diving event.

Bates splashed to victory in the individual medley in the time of 2:09.2.

The Two Rivers team won both the team relay events. It won the 160-yard medley in 1:38.5 and the 160-yard freestyle in 1:39.3.

Xavier JV '5' Wins, 59-31, Over St. John

LITTLE CHUTE — Xavier High School's unbeaten junior varsity basketball team scored a 59-31 victory over St. John Sunday afternoon. It was the fourteenth straight win for the Junior Hawks.

Xavier used its height and fast break to good advantage in building up a 12-8 first period margin and a 32-19 halftime spread. St. John was able to score only 12 points in the second half.

Eleven players dotted the scoring column for the Hawks. Bob DeBruin was high with 16, Dave Christianson had nine and Tim Garvey eight. Bruce Hammen hit 11 points for the losers.

No End to Things He Can Do

Hornung, One of Most Decorated Athletes, to Get Maxwell Award

BY ART DALEY

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Paul Hornung

is quite a boy . . . he's the best football player in our land, the most famous of Uncle Sam's soldiers, and the most-wanted athlete-speaker.

The Packers' fabulous halfback is the most-decorated of athletes — college or pro.

The Chicago branch, Football Writers of America, gave him their top award Friday night. Tonight he gets the famed Maxwell Trophy in Philadelphia. Saturday, he spoke at the Catholic Action Youth convention in Milwaukee.

Paul had to play second fiddle to just one athlete this year — Roger Maris, the Yankees' slugger who beat Hornung out of the athlete of the year award in a world-wide contest sponsored by the Associated Press. Maris also beat Paul in the annual Hickock athlete of the year.

There seems to be no end of the things Paul can do. A natural scorer, Hornung put on a basketball uniform Friday night and led the Packers' defense in, you guessed it, scoring.

Hit on Teflon

A week ago, Hornung did his bit in the cerebral palsy telethon and scored a big hit. A natural ham, Hornung doesn't have to act. He just speaks, sings or dances — or just looks.

Hornung is the best liked player on the Packer squad. He gets a lot of kidding. He takes it, and likes it. He has a bushel of nicknames. Somebody started calling him "trophy head" a year or so ago because of all the awards he gets.

Hornung already has picked up eight "trophies" and there could be many more. Being in the Army makes it rather difficult to get around and various awards around the country hardly will even come to light — unless he is present. The donors merely inform him by letter.

And Hornung is the last guy to let anybody know about his honors.

Here are some of Hornung's known honors thus far this season:

1. Outstanding player in the NFL, Associated Press.
2. Outstanding player in the fornia this season which crowned five different winners. They were Phil Rodgers at Los Angeles; Tommy Jacobs, San Diego; Doug Ford, the Bing Crosby; and Litter at San Francisco.

Little wound up with a 75 and a second-place tie at 345 with Jay Hebert. At 346 were Tommy Aaron, Gardner Dickinson and Al Geiberger.

Happiest man was former U.S. Open champion Dick Mayer. He got to keep the entire $50,000 bonus he earned with a hole-in-one Saturday. There were no more jacks so Mayer didn't have to split the money.
